Federal pay hike okayed; Ford setback

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, by a vote of 64 to 35, cleared a pay raise for 3.5 million civilian and military employes today, handing President Ford's economic policy its first setback in Congress.

The Senate refused Ford's request, backed by a last-minute plea, to postpone the pay increase by three months and cut government spending by $700 million.

As a result, the 5.52 per cent increase will go into effect Oct. 1 instead of Jan. 1 as proposed by Ford.

The proposal to delay the hike was rescinded when the Senate adopted a resolution of disapproval. Under law, if either the House or Senate disapproves by majority vote, the pay increase goes automatically into effect.

Ford had said that his plan to delay the pay hike was aimed at fighting inflation.

But congressional opponents claimed that the deferrel would single out federal employes to take the brunt of the anti-inflation battle.

Man, 89, killed in gun battle with policemen

LEXINGTON, KY. (UPI) — An 89-year-old man, who apparently secluded himself in his apartment for several days after he was served with a temporary eviction notice, was shot and killed Wednesday night during a gun battle with policemen.

Four policemen were injured during the shootout with the man, identified as Fred Featherstone, but none was hurt seriously. Police said Featherstone suffered at least three bullet wounds.

Officials said policeman Ray Mardis, who lives across the hall from the man, knocked on his door Wednesday evening to investigate strange noises coming from inside the apartment.

"Officer Mardis hadn't seen the old guy for three days and he heard strange noises coming from (his) apartment," police spokesman Joe Catt said. "Mardis knocked on the door and the man replied, 'Who is it.' The police officer announced himself and the old man told him 'Get out of here or I'll shoot you.'"

Catt said Mardis summoned help and when two more officers arrived, the man opened up with a shotgun blast through the door, barely missing the policemen.

"That's when we went into action," Catt said. "We didn't know just what we were up against."

A force of patrolmen was called in and the fire department was on standby.

Patrolmen used 17 teargas grenades to try to flush the man out of the apartment, "but each time the old man responded with a blast from his shotgun," Catt said.

When the firing ceased, the man was found dead on the floor beside two high-powered rifles, a shotgun and a supply of ammunition. Catt said the strange noises apparently came from a police monitor and a citizens band radio.

Tenants in the building had been served with temporary eviction notices so that a new owner could begin renovating the premises, Catt said.

"Kind of makes you wonder about a guy that old," Catt said. "He certainly had a lot of spunk."

Jaworski expects him to take stand

Nixon subpoenaed to testify against former aides at trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has subpoenaed former President Nixon as a prosecution witness in the Watergate cover-up trial of six former Nixon associates, it was announced today.

Nixon has already been subpoenaed by his former No. 2 aide, John D. Ehrlichman, to appear as a defense witness in the trial scheduled to begin Oct. 1.

Jaworski's office confirmed that the subpoena was issued Wednesday night and will be served on Nixon at his San Clemente, Calif., estate by FBI agents.

"He's been subpoenaed to testify," a spokesman for Jaworski said. "We expect him to testify."

The Jaworski subpoena calls for Nixon to appear in U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's courtroom on Oct. 1, even though he may not be called to the witness stand for several days.

A spokesman for the special prosecutor said its subpoena will not conflict with Ehrlichman's subpoena—indicating the possibility Nixon might appear both for the prosecution and defense.

There has been speculation as to whether Nixon will actually comply with the subpoenas and appear in person because of reports that he is in poor health and deeply depressed about his loss of the presidency.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower said earlier this week that her father was expected to be hospitalized soon for a new flareup of phlebitis in his left leg. She flew to San Clemente today to be with him.

Should Nixon's lawyer argue that his health does not permit him to testify, Sirica could appoint a doctor to visit the former president to determine whether he would stand the rigors of testifying in a long trial. If Nixon were found fit to testify but failed to appear, he could be cited for contempt.

Ehrlichman and five other former Nixon aides and associates are scheduled to be tried on charges of covering up the Watergate scandal. The same grand jury that indicted them also named Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Nixon cannot face criminal charges for any role he might have had in the cover-up because he was pardoned by President Ford. But the pardon also removed Nixon's option of pleading the 5th Amendment.

OPPOSE KENNEDY BID

Demonstrators opposed to a possible presidential bid by Sen. Edward Kennedy picket outside a fund-raising dinner Wednesday at Hobart, Ind. Kennedy was introduced at the $100-a-plate reception as "the next president." Sen. Kennedy said he has not decided whether to seek the office in 1976.

Petition's successful in blocking trustee; special election set

The Los Angeles County superintendent of schools today officially struck down the appointment of Mrs. Nancy Bennett to the board of the Mt. San Antonio College District.

Instead, district voters will make the selection Jan. 7.

Supt. Richard Clowes ruled that a group known as the Committee for Open Government had gathered enough signatures to void the appointment and to warrant a special election.

Mrs. Bennett, named by the MSAC board of trustees to fill a vacancy left by the death of Lance D. Smith, was to be seated this afternoon.

Because of the success of the petition, the board will remain one member short until a successor to Smith is elected. Supt. Clowes has set the date of the special election for Jan. 7.

Those who wish to run for the office may take out nomination papers at the office of the County registrar in Los Angeles between Oct. 1 and Nov. 8.

The citizen group claims it has no objection to Mrs. Bennett, but it objects to the board's action in "handpicking" her without consulting the district's voters.

With a total of 1,437 signatures needed to call the special election, the group wound up with a total of 1,770 valid names out of a total of 2,550, according to the final count of the registrar of voters' office.

Controversy places McVittie's city attorney job in jeopardy

With controversy surrounding the campaign of William McVittie for the 65th Assembly District seat his status as Chino city attorney may be in jeopardy, the Progress-Bulletin has learned.

Chino city councilmen left the issue unresolved Tuesday night after a closed personnel session was held to discuss the matter.

Mayor Bob McLeod refused to comment on the session, but other council sources disclosed that McVittie's status was a "topic of discussion."

No definite conclusion was arrived at, one source indicated, adding that it was an informal meeting, and the matter could come up again.

Alluding to extensive recent publicity over charges that McVittie's campaign offered deputy county registrars bonuses for Democratic voters registered, the source said, the review of McVittie's status was necessary.

McVittie, contacted by phone, said he was excused from the personnel session before discussion of his status. "Anything they discussed is confidential, and I have no information on it," he said.

Referring to the charges leveled against his campaign, he said "If I was convicted of bribery, I should resign as city attorney."

The charges originated in an Ontario newspaper, and indicated McVittie's campaign was offering 40 cents above the regular fee to county registrars for every Democratic registration they recorded in their district.

McVittie admits he was involved in a registration drive, but it included members of Democratic and Republican parties.

HEW reports inflation will increase Medicare costs $4.3 billion in 1975

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taxpayer expenses for elderly Medicare and indigent Medicaid patients will increase by at least $4.3 billion next year because of rampant inflation, the government announced today.

The disclosure of startling increases in federal spending, over which the government has no control, was made in a Department of Health, Education and Welfare background paper at the latest in a series of Ford administration conferences leading to a Sept. 27-28 economic summit here.

But the meetings today and Friday at HEW are markedly different from the previous six sessions in at least one respect: The government will ask poor people what effect inflation is having on them.

Among the eight congressmen, government officials and 180 representatives of organizations expected to attend were executives of such vocal and often critical groups as the National Welfare Rights Organization and the National Council of Senior Citizens.

However, establishment organizations like the American Hospital Association, National Education Association and the United Way of America dominate the invitation list.

Black leaders have called their own "counter-summit" on inflation here this weekend.

HEW prepared four background papers for participants to guide the discussion at its meeting.

Excerpts from each:

—On health, which drew the most attention at the meeting because of skyrocketing doctor and hospital costs, HEW analysts report that federal Medicare spending will increase by more than 25 per cent, from $11.3 billion in fiscal year 1974 to an estimated $14.3 billion, in fiscal 1975. Medicaid expenditures will rise from $5.7 billion to over $7 billion.

—On education, HEW poses the problems of inflation-created cutbacks in school services and of lost careers and productivity when "inflation upsets the plans of families to finance higher educaion especially where a savings program has been counted on."

—On income security, HEW raises the ominous spectre of increased unemployment among male and female heads of low income families as a result of inflation and asks: "Can or should work relief programs or public service employment programs serve a role in alleviating unemployment hardships?"

May cut off supplies

American creditors threaten Vietnam peacekeeping mission

SAIGON (UPI) — American creditors are threatening to force the debt-ridden international truce team to halt peacekeeping operations in South Vietnam.

Two U.S. contractors vowed Wednesday to cut off vital supplies to the International Commission of Control and Supervision unless the four-nation peace group pays its bills.

The firms —Air America and Pacific Architects and Engineers —have provided food, transportation, security and maintenance for the ICCS mission over the past 20 months.

"We have informed the ICCS in early August, and very recently, that we need payment if we are to continue to support their activities," a PA&E spokesman said.

He said PA&E and Air America "are in the process of withdrawing that support because it has become apparent that the ICCS is without operating funds."

PA&E threatened to phase out all services by the end of this month. "What the effects will be, we are unable to judge, but we understand the ICCS has other alternatives," the firm said.

The truce team, made up of delegates from Iran, Indonesia, Hungary and Poland, piled up debts of about $6 million in the fiscal year ending last April 1.

The 1973 truce accord calls for the signatories —the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong —to pay 23.5 per cent each of the peacekeeping budget. The truce nations pay the rest.

The United States, however, is the only signer to pay its share of the new $24.5 million budget. South Vietnam has agreed, but has yet to pay. North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have refused.

Texas floods rout many from homes

By United Press International

The worst flood in three decades forced evacuation of at least 200 families in the suburbs and low-lying poor sections of Abilene, Tex., Wednesday and the rising waters were not expected to crest until today.

"The water is just starting to break over the banks of the creeks inside the city," Police Sgt. J.T. Sanders said Wednesday night. He said the worst of the flooding would hit after midnight. "That is going to be a bad one," he said.

Flash flood watches stayed in effect for central and southern sections of West Texas.

Over a half inch of rain fell at Lubbock, Tex., Wednesday night and heavier rains were expected in other parts of west Texas.

5 perish as light plane crashes attempting to land at Riverside

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Five persons aboard a small charter plane flying here from Las Vegas were killed today when the craft struck a power pole while approaching the Municipal airport and crashed in the dry bed of the Santa Ana River.

There were no survivors in the crash which occurred at 4:55 a.m. in a dense fog.

The plane burst into flames after crashing and the bodies of the victims were badly burned. Identification was delayed pending notification of next of kin.

Lt. Merv Feinstein of the Riverside Police Department said the plane was a single engine Cherokee Six which had been chartered to make the flight from Las Vegas.

The pilot was trying to put down in the fog when he struck the top of a power pole on the edge of the airport west of Riverside.

The accident for a time knocked out electrical power to sections of the county in the vicinity.

Death sentence ruled out in slaying of valley farmer

A Los Angeles Superior Court jury Wednesday decided that a "special circumstance" in the slaying last March of wealthy San Dimas strawberry grower Frank Namimatsu did not exist and thereby spared his convicted killer the death sentence.

The same jury which convicted James Mitose, 57-year-old self-styled Buddhist priest and karate expert, of first-degree murder in the Namimatsu case, rejected the special circumstance allegation necessary under the new state law having to do with capital punishment.

The special circumstance claimed by Deputy Dist. Atty. Louis Ito was that Mitose had hired a karate student, Terry Lee, 27, to kill Namimatsu and Mrs. Toshiko Namimatsu, 61. Murder for hire is now a capital offense in California.

Instead, Mitose probably will be sentenced to life in prison when he is returned before Judge Leslie Light Oct. 22, observers said.

The jury began deliberating the penalty phase of the murder trial Tuesday afternoon and returned Wednesday afternoon with its ruling.

Among other charges of which Mitose was ruled guilty were conspiracy to commit murder, solicitation to commit murder, attempted murder, grand theft and extortion.

Mitose's wife, Dorothy, 62, was ruled guilty of extortion and their son, 19-year-old Alvin, was found guilty of grand theft.

Ito maintained that Mitose ordered the Namimatsus killed when they threatened to go to authorities after he bilked them out of $100,000 in phony medical cures.

Mrs. Namimatsu survived the nighttime attack in their Los Angeles home which killed her husband.

Lee has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in Namimatsu's death.

Namimatsu and his brother operated a strawberry farm in San Dimas.

Reagan visit sparks Demo attack on state milk laws

Gov. Ronald Reagan's visit to Ontario today was greeted by an accusation that the public is now paying more for milk largely due to state bureaucrats' poor administration of milk pricing laws enacted in the 1930s.

Reagan will attend a buffet dinner in Ontario in support of Pete VanderPoel, a Chino dairyman, who is seeking election in the newly created 65th Assembly District.

The milk issue was raised by Bill McVittie, a Democrat who is opposing VanderPoel.

"The problem is that the nature of state milk pricing laws, enacted during the depression to bring stability to the dairy industry, have not kept pace with the current economic realities of the dairy industry," charged McVittie.

"We continue to think in terms of milk coming from a local dairy, being processed in a plant nearby, and then delivered in quart bottles to our door by a neighbor who is a milkman. That's not the way it works anymore. Today, cows are milked mechanically. The milk is carried by tanker to a retail processor. And then the distributor takes it to the supermarket where we buy it in half gallon paper containers."

Speaking of VanderPoel, McVittie said he describes himself as vice chairman of the League of California Milk Producers and president of the Milk Producers Council.

He should tell the public where he stands on high milk costs, why he defended the recent dumping of hundreds of thousands of gallons of raw milk, and whether he thinks it fair for the dairy industry to spend millions of dollars on promotional projects which must be paid for by higher prices charged the public."

In reply, VanderPoel said dairymen would be happy to lower the milk prices, but they are affected themselves by higher costs for hay and grain.

Regarding the dumping of milk, he said this was a "tragic situation," and should never occur again. A new facility is being built in Artesia so milk can be condensed and prevent this.

Fog hampers area street, air traffic

Dense fog again shrouded some valley communities, slowing traffic and causing delays in takeoffs and landings at Ontario International Airport.

In an extended forecast, the weatherman says that the morning fog and hazy sunshine in the afternoons will continue through Sunday.

This morning's fog appeared to be the heaviest in West End communities. A spokesman for Ontario International Airport said takeoffs and landings were delayed starting at 7:30 a.m. No commercial planes were diverted and passengers were not bused to Los Angeles as they were Wednesday because of the heavy fog. Planes took off and landed during periods when the fog cleared this morning.

Butter churners highlight fair activity Friday

Visitors to the Los Angeles County Fair Friday will be able to butter their bread on both sides if they enter the popular butter-churning contest at 1:30 p.m. in the livestock judging area.

Churners compete for cash prizes and ribbons and also get to take home the butter they have churned. Judging is based on speed and also on texture.

High school students from around the world will visit the fair Friday which is American Field Services Day. A picnic reception on Picnic Hill will be hosted by the fair for the students and their American "families."

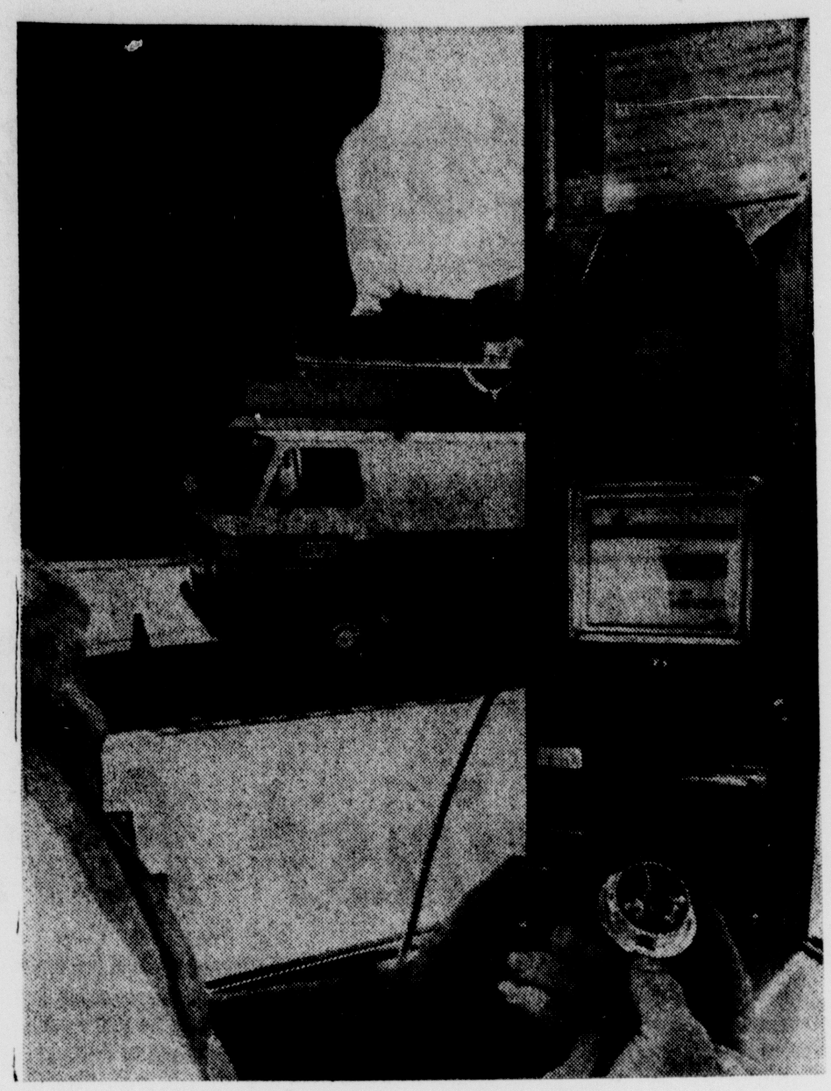
Attendance dropped Wednesday compared to the first Wednesday in 1973 when 39,875 were admitted to the fair, down from 40,768.

Total for the first six days of the fair is 342,086. The 1973 attendance for the same period was 363,028.

Today is Ladies Day at the fair, with special programs for women scheduled throughout the grounds.

In the Home Arts Showcase, Griswold's will present programs on the use of wine in cooking and with meals, and on entertaining. Armstrong Nurseries will give a presentation on "Arranging Flowers From Your Garden." Southern California Edison will give a program on canning and freezing foods.

Continuing as the free Grandstand show at 8 p.m. are the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Musical Ride, the National Band of New Zealand, and Maori native dancers of New Zealand.



HANDLE WITH CARE

Richard H. Fisher, installer-repairman for General Telephone, examines the exposed wires a coin booth telephone unit recently vandalized. The company says damages are on increase.

Damaged equipment hazardous

Coin phones taking a beating from vandals

Increased coin booth vandalism is causing some concern on the part of General Telephone Co. for the safety of its customers.

"Look before you listen," is the warning given the general public by George F. Johnson, claims manager for the firm.

Johnson's main concern is injury to customers, who, through force of habit, will pick up a broken hand unit and, without looking, place it to their ear and mouth and possibly get cut by exposed wires or the chipped surface of the instrument.

In cases of vandalism, Johnson says, "Either the telephone instrument's receiver cap and capsule have been taken, leaving the wires of the unit exposed, or the vandals have banged the instrument against the booth, leaving it cracked and dangerous for use."

Johnson said the company is doing its best "to police our booths as often as we can. We hire outside contractors who clean over 13,000 booths every 30 days. We also have our own coin collectors who make collections and monitor cleanliness and upkeep."

Johnson also points out that the firm's security department is constantly on the lookout for acts of vandalism.

When entering a telephone booth, Johnson hopes the public will take every precaution and examine the instrument's hand unit carefully before putting it up to the ear or mouth.

Levi bandits hit Fotomat, gas station for little money

Armed robbers struck twice in Chino Wednesday, robbing the Fotomat at Central and Walnut avenues about 4:30 p.m. and the Econo Service Station at Seventh Street and Riverside Drive about 10:30 p.m. of small amounts of cash.

Loretta Gonzales, 21, cashier at the Fotomat, told police that a Caucasian man about 30 with shaggy black hair and a long mustache walked up to her booth and produced a blue steel automatic pistol. She said the man ordered her to empty the cash register. She said he fled on foot after taking a small amount of cash.

Miss Gonzales said the man was wearing an embroidered blue work shirt and Levis.

Joe Berry, 19, an attendant at the Econo Service Station, told officers he was confronted by a Caucasian male about 5 feet 8, 170 pounds wearing a brown mask about 10:30 p.m. Berry said the robber displayed an automatic pistol and ordered him to hand over the cash from the register. He said the man wearing a brown T-shirt and Levis took the money and fled on foot.

Police said that the two robberies appeared to be unrelated.

Neither robber had been arrested this morning.

Disarmed gunwoman

Cite CIM officer for melee bravery

A California Institution for Men correctional officer Wednesday was presented a plaque for meritorious service by the Montclair Police Department for disarming a woman who threatened to shoot two police officers investigating a street fight in Montclair Sept. 6.

Montclair Police Chief Raymond McLean presented CIM officer Joe L. Jones of Montclair the plaque and a certificate of appreciation Wednesday following a special luncheon.

McLean said Jones' actions on Sept. 6 may have prevented a minor family quarrel from becoming a major incident with the loss of several lives.

According to McLean, on Sept. 6 Montclair Police Officers Sam Riley and Chester Thompson were called to the scene of a family fight in the street at 10400 Amherst Ave. about 7 p.m. When the officers arrived they observed a man who had apparently suffered a beating and went to question him. During the questioning, McLean said the man became hostile and began scuffling with the officers.

During the melee one of the officers' service revolvers dropped to the ground and the other officer discovered that his revolver also was missing. According to McLean, several other persons in the area jumped on the officers backs during the scuffle.

In the next few moments a woman retrieved one of the revolvers and pointed it at the officers threatening to shoot if they did not release the man they were struggling with. Then out of the middle of the crowd that had gathered around the officers and their assailants, stepped the 6 foot 2, 225-pound Jones.

Jones said a few words to the woman and took the revolver out of her hand and returned it to the unarmed officer. McLean said no arrests were made at the time.

McLean said that Jones' conduct "was exemplary" particularly in these times of increasing violence and street crime and the unwillingness of many citizens to "become involved."

Seek death cause of county employe found in park pool

Chemical tests have been ordered in an attempt to determine the cause of death of an Azusa man found floating in the pool at Puddingstone Swim Park in San Dimas Tuesday evening.

The victim has been identified as Glen Van De Sandt Phillips, 58, of 344 S. Orange Ave. His body was found floating fully-clothed in the center of the one-acre swimming pool by park patrolman Reese D. Nelson.

Nelson summoned an off-duty park lifeguard Case E. Yandell, who entered the water and removed the body. Fire department paramedics attempted vainly to revive the victim and he was pronounced dead at the scene.

Homicide investigators today said no marks were found on the body. A coroner's spokesman said the autopsy performed Wednesday failed to reveal the cause of death.

Meanwhile, detectives learned that Phillips was an employe of the Los Angeles County Department of Social Services. His car was found in a parking area near the pool and was impounded for investigation.

Deputies said Phillips apparently entered the pool after it had been closed for the day Tuesday afternoon.

4th body recovered in flash flood tragedy: a waterskier

A man who was waterskiing when struck by a wall of water was identified today as the fourth victim of a flash flood which wiped out Nelson Landing resort on the edge of Lake Mojave.

The National Park Service identified the man as Tsutomu Kinugasa, 19, of Monterey Park.

Among the other victims of the flash flood who are presumed dead is Ted Ducey, 47, head basketball coach of the Claremont-Mudd college team.

A Park Service spokesman said Kinugasa was with a group waterskiing in the lake when the flash flood roared down Eldorado Canyon and poured tons of mud and debris into the lake.

Witnesses saw Kinugasa go under. Three other bodies have been recovered by search teams. Two large cranes brought to the lake shore lifted out tons of mud and silt in search of bodies. Search operations continued today.

Thieves raid cabinet shop of truck, tools

Montclair police this morning are searching for burglars who broke into the Tessier Cabinet Co. at 5607 Arrow Highway, loaded a company truck with numerous hand tools and other items and drove away Tuesday morning.

Employes discovered the burglary as they checked in for work. Police reported burglars broke into the building and found the keys to a company truck in its ignition and loaded numerous tools valued at over $1,000, into the vehicle and drove off.

Upland police discovered the stolen truck abandoned in the area of 19th Street and San Antonio Avenue later Tuesday morning.

100 plywo heets stolen from firm

Thieves stole nearly 100 plywood sheets valued at $1,000 from a housing construction site in the area of First Avenue and 21st Street in Upland, police reported.

The theft was discovered by James Elliott, construction foreman for Environmental Home Builders Co. from Claremont, about 10 a.m.

Police arrest three, seize $1,000 in dope

Pomona police today sought complaints against three men they said they arrested Tuesday with $1,000 in heroin.

Authorities said the investigation had been continuing for several weeks and was a combined effort of the narcotics bureau and the burglary task force.

Shortly after 3:30 p.m., officers entered the house at 1436 S. Reservoir St. and arrested Efrain Guillon Chararria, 18, Joaquin Guillen Chararria, 23, and Ricardo Garza, 21, and seized the contraband. A 17-year-old youth also arrested in the raid has been released.

Newspaper recovery project needs help

With four weeks remaining in Pomona's trial newspaper recovery program, officials have appealed to residents to support the project.

Although more than 22.7 tons of newspapers have been recovered, said Terry Conner, project coordinator, the weekly total for the eighth week of the 12-week trial period slumped to only 4,850 pounds.

To participate in the program, Pomona residents should bundle their newspapers and place them out next to their trash cans on their regular refuse collection day.

Variety Club salutes Graham crusade

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — The 25th anniversary of the crusade that launched Billy Graham's career as a worldwide evangelist was celebrated Wednesday night with a salute by the Variety Clubs International charity organization. Graham accepted the honors only with the understanding that they actually belong to God.

Graham was toasted by Hollywood celebrities and was given two Variety Clubs awards on the eve of a special three-day crusade beginning tonight in the Hollywood Bowl. The meetings mark the silver anniversary of the 1949 Los Angeles Crusade that transformed Graham from a backwoods Baptist preacher into an ecumenical evangelist with an audience around the world.

"I am trying to look and act humble, but that's hard," Graham said after receiving the Variety Clubs Heart Award from the group's Southern California chapter and becoming the fifth recipient—the first not a head of state—to receive the Variety Club Gold Card.

L.A. hires mediator to solve RTD strike

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mayor Tom Bradley was scheduled to meet with San Francisco attorney Adolph Koven today before the newly-appointed meditator meets with representatives of the striking Bus Drivers' and Mechanics' Unions and the Rapid Transit District.

The city council voted Wednesday to appropriate $10,000 for Koven's mediation services. He plans to work with state conciliator Thomas McCarthy in an effort to settle the six-week strike.

Koven, 57, is a specialist in labor mediation.

Bradley appealed in person to the council for the money to hire Koven. Bradley said Koven would "report directly to me and I, in turn, will report to you (the city council) on the status of the negotiations."

Negotiations were held Wednesday between the state mediator and the Bus Drivers' United Transportation Union, but no progress was reported.

Pentagon sees loophole

1st deserters arrive to begin 'repentence'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first of hundreds of Vietnam War deserters arrived at a "clemency processing center" in Indiana today to begin their reentry back into American society, the Pentagon said.

Military authorities said four army "absentees" arrived at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., early today for processing over the next four days.

The Pentagon said each deserter would receive an undesirable discharge from the service and would be notified that the alternate service could result in exchanges of the papers for a clemency discharge.

But a Pentagon spokesman admitted that while draft dodgers will be forced to serve in alternate posts for up to 24 months, deserters will no longer be under official military jurisdiction once they get undesirable discharges.

A Justice Department spokesman said Wednesday President Ford was aware of the loophole when he announced the clemency program this week. The spokesman said Pentagon officials discussed the matter "at great length...(but) it was the only thing they could do."

Under terms of the President Ford's conditional amnesty, deserters have to pledge allegiance to the United States and agree to perform alternate service. Once taking those steps, they get an undesirable discharge.

After certifying that they have completed satisfactory public service work, they can appeal to a military review board for a clemency discharge to replace the undesirable discharge.

But once the deserter gets the undesirable discharge, a Pentagon spokesman said today, the military loses jurisdiction over him and there is no way he can be forced to perform the alternate service.

Draft evaders, on the other hand, must complete their alternate service or face government prosecution.

"It's true that once an individual gets an undesirable discharge he can then fail or refuse to serve his alternate service because since he's already discharged military jurisdiction over him is terminated," the spokesman said.

"But if he wishes to receive a clemency discharge —part of the requirement for getting clemency discharge means he has to attest to fact he has satisfactorily completed alternate service —he will have to complete that service."

Because there are no veterans' benefits attached to either type of discharge, and because the clemency discharge marks the recipient as a deserter, the only harm from avoiding alternate service would be the undesirable discharge.

But the spokesman said, "I think a guy trying to find a civilian job is going to stand a lot better chance with a civilian employer with a clemency discharge than an undesirable discharge."

The Pentagon said that in the first two days since the conditional amnesty was announced, 86 calls were received from deserters or relatives. The Army clearinghouse for returning deserters at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., said it had received 92 calls as of late Wednesday.

The Bureau of Prisons said all but one of the 84 men serving sentences for draft evasion were released Wednesday on 30-day furloughs, which one official said he thought would become permanent.

Tell consumers to use less electricity, says energy boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill asked utilities today to convince consumers to use less electricity.

He also urged tax changes that would assure power companies enough profit to build more generating plants and called on state regulatory commissions to set rates allowing utilities to realize a 13-15 per cent rate of return.

Sawhill, in remarks prepared for the FEA Electric Utilities Conference, said any tax savings for the utilities should not be used to reduce rates but to expand facilities to produce more power.

"The consumer must be assured that his power company can build the plants needed to supply him —not just today, but a decade or a generation from today," he said.

Calling an adequate electricity supply a "national imperative," Sawhill warned, "If we don't act resolutely, we could reach, within the decade, the point where consumers won't be able to buy electricity at any price."

Sawhill said the FEA was "making a strong effort to get passage" of tax legislation that would raise utilities investment tax credit from 4 to 7 per cent.

He said that to make sure the tax savings were used for expansion, the FEA would push for tax law changes limiting flow-through accounting.

"This practice has led to companies passing through tax savings in the form of lower rates instead of investment in new plants and equipment."

Sawhill called on the utilities to "take the lead in promoting a 'conservation ethic' through advertising campaigns and public education. ...We must have the same aggressive advertising and education effort by the industry that went into attracting customers to electricty."

Among suggestions for state regulatory commissioners, Sawhill said they should speed up rate review processes "to eliminate the lengthy delays that drain utilities financially" and "ensure an adequate rate of return."

"Whatever solutions you develop must include rates of return sufficient to ensure a financially healthy industry," Sawhill said.

Fifi slams into Honduras

Death and destruction in wake of hurricane

TEGUCIGAPA, Honduras (UPI) — Hurricane Fifi struck the northern coast of Honduras today with 130-mile winds, storm tides and torrential rains which left a trail of death and destruction in the nation's worst storm in a century.

Honduran authorities said the death toll is expected to exceed 200, and that in the region around the city of La Ceiba alone, 100 bodies have been counted. They estimated 100 other persons died elsewhere along the coast. Apparently most of the deaths were caused by drowning.

After smashing through Honduras Fifi turned its full force towards the tiny Carribbean country of Belize and was expected to hit there around 4 p.m. EDT.

Most of the damage in Honduras was from flooding with property and crop damage going into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Fifi devastated banana plantations, rice fields, bridges and highways, mowed down houses, and buildings of poor contruction which could not withstand the flooding and the hurricane winds.

Among cities reporting damage were San Pedro Sula, La Ceiba, Tela, Puerto Cortes, Trujillo, Puerto Castilla, Guajaca and the Bay Island (Islas Bahia) off the coast.

Honduran government authorities calculated that one-third of the country — comprising the nation's richest agricultural zone —was affected by the storm, although Fifi's rains covered virtually the entire country.

Emergency relief committees were rushing aid to affected areas.

At Puerto Cortes, Honduras' only oil refinery was reported isolated by flood waters.

Weather men said that on its present course Fifi's winds will sweep inland over the southernmost tip of Belize, just south of Punta Gorda, a city of 7,000 persons. The Belize government ordered hurricane precautions throughout the country, esspecially in the southern coastal sector.

Woman phones in own death notice to avoid prosecution

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — When Mrs. Lenore Silvertooth failed to appear in court on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, no one was surprised.

The Grand Rapids Press already had published the news of her death.

But Mrs. Silvertooth, 41, did not stay "dead."

Police investigated and said Wesnesday that she telephoned her own obituuary to the city's daily newspaper and to an official of the district court where she was suppposed to appear.

Court Clerk Gerard Rouse said he discovered Mrs. Silvertooth was very much alive when he telephoned the funeral home and church named in the obituary.

Authorities said she was accused of collecting $420 fraudulently by telephoning two church groups and several individudals on behalf of a friend she said needed $500 immediately.

The friend said she did not need the money and notified authorities.

Mrs. Silvertooth has a date in court Friday.

Little support for handcuffing CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prompted by disclosures of CIA operations in Chile, President Ford and congressional leaders today privately reviewed the policy of covert activities abroad and reportedly found little support for proposed new controls on the agency.

Congressional leaders were unusually reluctant to discuss the issue when they emerged from a 90-minute meeting with Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield refused to comment on the substance of the meeting, saying only that it dealt with "the CIA in general, and Chile in particular."

Asked if his idea for a joint congressional committee to oversee the CIA had been discussed, Mansfield acknowledged that it came up briefly. But he added it was not received "with much favor."

Senators attending the meeting were Mansfield and his GOP counterpart, Hugh Scott; Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and that panel's ranking Republican, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

Speaker Carl Albert led a House contingent including Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts and Republican leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona; Armed Services Committee chairman Edward Hebert, D-La., and the ranking Republican, William Bray of Indiana.

Ford disclosed the clandestine operations in Chile at his news conference Monday when he said the United States poured funds into the country to preserve opposition press and political parties after the 1970 election of the late Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The disclosure created a swell of controversy and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, charged today that by condoning such activity, Ford was advocating "the law of the jungle" in foreign affairs.

Specifically, criticism over the Chilean activity focused on the "Forty Committee," which approves such covert operations. Kissinger heads that committee.

How to deal with the inflation crisis

DETROIT (UPI) — A tight cutback in government spending coupled with extending unemployment benefits to a full year and a national program to voluntarily limit wage and price increases were among proposals offered Thursday at a conference dealing with the inflation crisis.

About 50 business and economic leaders submitted suggestions at the conference, one of 12 being held around the country as a prelude to President Ford's major economic summit conference in Washington later this month.

Ford Motor Co. Chairman Henry Ford II called for extension of unemployment compensation to 52 weeks—instead of the present 39-week maximum—to help offset the ramifications of a tightened governmental fiscal and monetary policy.

"I recognize, and regret, that even gradual restoration of fiscal and monetary control will mean higher unemployment for a period of several years," he said. "The alternative, I believe, is worse."

Ford also suggested that the government consider an income maintenance plan to assist those whose incomes are "below the level acceptable to society" and suggested the present minimum wage level for teen-age workers be reduced as a means of creating more jobs.

Carl Gerstacker, board chairman of Dow Chemical Co., offered a plan under which the government would ask corporations to voluntarily pledge not to raise prices more than 5 per cent a year, while labor unions would be pledged to keep wage rate demands at about 10 per cent annually.

Julie on way for visit with Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Julie Nixon Eisenhower flew to California Thursday to see her ailing father for the first time since he resigned as president.

A spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower went to her parents' home in San Clemente, Calif., by commercial airliner and intended to return to Washington Monday. Her husband, David, did not accompany her.

Mrs. Eisenhower disclosed earlier this week that former President Nixon plans to enter a hospital shortly because of a new flareup of phlebitis in his left leg.

When Nixon resigned and returned to San Clemente last Aug. 9, the Eisenhowers decided to remain in Washington. Mrs. Eisenhower said she has talked to her father by telephone, but has not yet seen him since that day.

People in today's news

DAVID CARRADINE

Carradine arrested

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor David Carradine, the star of the television series "Kung Fu," has been charged with burglary, malicious mischief and trespassing in what was apparently a drug-induced rampage in a neighbor's home.

Carradine, 37, son of the eccentric character actor John Carradine, allegedly broke into the home of a neighbor, Michael Lobner, Sunday under the influence of drugs, overturned furniture, broke windows and left a trail of blood from a cut he received during the rampage.

When police officers arrested Carradine, 37, in the office of his producer at Warner Bros. Studios in Burbank Monday, he was reported to have explained vaguely that he had found himself in "a strange house" that had "closed in on him" and that he had tried to "break out."

He is to appear in Los Angeles Municipal Court Friday.

Call from the coach

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — George Allen, coach of the Washington Redskins professional football team, has called former President Richard Nixon twice to wish him well, it was learned Wednesday.

Nixon, while in the White House, was an avid Redskin fan and was said to seldom miss a game on television.

While watching one such game, Nixon telephoned Allen and reached him on the sidelines, suggesting a play which the Redskins used in the next series of plays.

A visit to Castro

MIAMI (UPI) — President Julius Nyerere of the African Republic of Tanzania arrived in Havana Wednesday for an official state visit at the invitation of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, the Cuban radio reported.

Nyerere was greeted at the airport by Castro and other Cuban dignitaries.

German warning

BONN (UPI) — West German Finance Minister Hans Apel has warned his European neighbors not to expect his government to bail them out of their financial difficulties.

Apel noted Wednesday that West Germany holds 60 per cent of the nine-country European Common Market's foreign exchange reserves, and continues to achieve record trade and payments surpluses while the other eight battle deficits.

"All this has caused us to be unjustly viewed by some of our European partners as the rich cousins on the Rhine," Apel said. But, he added, "No one is going to be spared the difficult course of adjusting national demands to the performance ability of one's own economy."

SURGERY ON SIAMESE TWINS — An operation to separate Siamese twins was completed in eight hours Wednesday at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia. Prognosis for the twins is "excellent."

Siamese twins separated in surgery

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — For the first time since their birth 13 months ago, Siamese twins Clara and Alta Rodriguez will be able to sit up at the same time.

The twins, who were joined at the middle and lower trunk in a sitting position facing one another, were separated Wednesday at Children's Hospital here in a relatively rare operation.

Dr. C. Everett Koop, the hospital's surgeon-in-chief and head of the operating team, termed the prognosis for the babies as "excellent."

The Siamese twins, of the Dominican Republic, were separated after four and a half hours of surgery, but additional surgery carried into the late afternoon. They have two hearts and four kidneys linked to each other's bladders and shared an intestinal tract and rectum. Their blood supplies criss-crossed into each other.

The team of 23 doctors and nurses gave the existing intestinal tract and rectum to Clara. Dr. Koop said he feared a colostomy would have to be performed on Alta to push the colon through the wall of the abdomen.

However, Dr. Koop, noting that the operation went better than expected, said there was enough colon to enable him to make an artificial rectum and put it in the normal place. He was also able to insert it through a mass of muscle so the baby could have some control over her bowel functions.

According to Dr. Koop, who successfully performed a similar operation 18 years ago, because the twins were connected in the pelvic region, their pelvises were in the shape of a "C" instead of the normal "O".

"They will have problems learning to walk," he said. "If they had been only three months old, we could have brought the pelvic girdles together easier. But they've developed too much bone."

Clara will have to undergo a second operation in about two weeks during which her pelvis will be broken in two places and then reset to get the hip joints into the proper place for walking. The surgeons performed this operation on Alta Wednesday because breaking and reshaping the pelvis enabled them to close the hole in her abdomen where she had been joined to her sister.

The babies will be kept in respirators at least for today and are expected to heal in two to three weeks.

Cancer grant given USC

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The USC School of Medicine has received a $900,000 grant to support training programs in the study of cancer, it was announced today.

The award, given by the National Cancer Institute to cover a four-year period, continues a clinical cancer training grant which has been in effect since 1965.

The award also funds yearly visits of approximately 12 cancer specialists from across the country and abroad who spend up to three days at the university participating in undergraduate and graduate instruction.

Cleanup for auto shops

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The City Attorney's office was instructed to prosecute violators of an ordinance to clean up auto repair shops after the city council lifted a moratorium on the measure.

The council lifted the moratorium Wednesday and requested the city Building and Safety Department to enforce laws that would stop much of the "blight" and noise associated with some auto repair shops.

One law provided in the Planning and Zoning Codes requires that all auto repairs be conducted inside a three-sided building. Another code requires body work and painting to be done in a structure with four walls.

The council first ordered the enforcement of the building code last May. About 400 citations have been issued since then, but no action was taken because of the moratorium.

Other code provisions include prohibitions on storing automobiles or parts outdoors.

Doris Day wins $22 million suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actress Doris Day was awarded more than $22 million Wednesday in a fraud suit against her attorney, Jerome Rosenthal.

Superior Court Judge Lester E. Olson said Rosenthal was guilty of the "grossest negligence" in business which the judge said "stinks to high heaven."

Rosenthal was found guilty of defrauding Miss Day and her late husband, Marty Melcher, in a variety of business ventures, including speculation in oil wells in Texas, Oklahoma and Kentucky and in the construction of two large hotels.

Included in the $22,835,648 judgment was $3 million in punitive damages.

Rats, like business execs, take drink after hard day

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Rats and executives have something in common —their enjoyment of cocktails after a hard day.

"Stress appears to induce a preference for alcohol in animals that ordinarily wouldn't have much to do with it," Michigan State University psychologist Glenn Hatton said.

"Furthermore, rat drinking patterns seem to mimic those of harried executives."

In a test, Hatton removed rats from their home cages and put them into a box where they received a mild electric shock— the stress. Though both water and alcohol were available in the box, the rats touched neither. But once back in their home cases, Hatton said, the stressed rats began to guzzle alcohol.

Hatton concluded that alcohol may help the body cope with stress.

DON, YES; DONNA, NO — Donna T. Dow, 25, of Sacramento, filled out identical Texaco credit card applications, one as Don and the other as Donna T. Dow. Fictitious Don got a credit card but Donna was denied a card stating her credit was insufficient. She is conferring with her attorney about possibility of filing a discrimination suit. Company denied accusation stating there were "lots of intangibles." Spokesmen offered Donna a card in exchange for "Don's", but she's undecided about action to take.

DRAFT EVADER FREED — Christopher J. Musser is greeted by his mother, Mrs. Beverly Musser, upon his arrival in San Francisco. Musser spent two years in prison after refusing to be drafted.

Family proud of path draft resister took

NOVATO, Calif. (UPI) — A college student who spent two years in prison as a draft resister has been released to his proud family, which includes a father who is a retired Navy commander.

"The family is proud that he chose to go this way," Mrs. Beverly Musser said of her son, Christopher J. Musser, 24, who was released from federal prison at Lompoc, Calif.

"I'm pleased and proud that he decided to go through the system."

Rather than flee the country, the son took his case to court and lost when his Selective Service board refused to classify him as a conscientious objector.

Ronald Rubenstein, attorney for the youth, said: "I think if anybody deserves any kind of amnesty, it should be somebody like Chris who stuck with the system the whole way."

The attorney said the College of Marin student tried unsuccessfully as soon as he got his induction notice to have himself classified as a conscientious objector.

Nearly unbeatable at the polls

Funds found more available to incumbents

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Incumbent California state legislators, on the average, raised almost twice as much campaign funds as their opponents in 1972 general election races, Common Cause-California reported today.

In a report on campaign finances for 1972 legislative races, the group also concluded, "The greater access to campaign funds of incumbent legislators, when combined with other advantages of incumbency, makes incumbent legislators nearly unbeatable at the polls."

The report also said it is "virtually impossible" for challengers to run a competitive race against an incumbent "without spending substantial amounts of money."

In the 1972 Assembly general election campaigns, Cause said, incumbents raised an average of $29,378 while challengers facing incumbents collected an average of $18,387. In Senate races that year, it said incumbents raised an average of $65,306 compared with $24,737 collected by challengers on the average.

The report pointed out all 19 incumbent senators seeking re-election won in 1972 as did 65 of 69 assemblymen who ran for re-election.

The back up its contention that challengers need substantial financing to run a competitive race against incumbents, Common Cause said only 16 challengers of Assembly incumbents were in competitive races—either win or losing with more than 40 per cent of the vote.

"Each of these challengers had substantial financing."

The group said the average expenditure for the 16 challengers was $42,240, far more than the average for all Assembly challengers but not as much as the $49,973 spent on the average by their incumbent opponents.

The report also concluded that when no incumbent is running, challengers of both the Democratic and Republican parties receive substantial financing and the races are competitive.

300-year-old oak tree

J. Awdry Armstrong, presedent of the Mt. San Antonio Gardens Club, in Pomona and Mrs. L.G. Clarke, chairman of the dedicatory committee at the Gardens are standing in "Live Oak" court beneath a 300-year-old oak tree. The court is part of a new facility that was opened and dedicated Wednesday. The new facility will house and care for 60 elderly persons.

Dedication rites held

Retirement home addition

Dedicatory ceremonies Wenesday officially opened "The Lodge" a building addition to the 13 year-old Mt. San Antonio Gardens, a retirement home in Pomona.

The new personal care facility, costing over $1 million, attracted many prominent civic and church leaders to the brief ceremonies. J. Awdry Armstrong, president of the Mt. San Antonio Gardens' Club, was the master of ceremonies. Other persons who attended the ceremonies and luncheon that followed afterward included Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire and Dr. Fred Register, conference minister of the Congregational Church.

The Lodge, which will serve as a personal care unit for 60 residents of the Gardens, is the result of years of planning by trustees and members. Over $500,000 worth of contributions in cash and furnishings came from members living in the Gardens.

Of special interest to the valley residents is the historic live oak tree, which for the last 300 years has occupied the eastern border of the former 10-acre citrus goove, located at Bonita and Towne avenues. This tree will remain undisturbed and will serve as the central focus of landscaping in what will be called the "Live Oak" court.

The oak tree, which has a limb spread of 78 feet, will have its root base protected from damage by a concrete frame.

Wednesday also marked the 13th anniversary of the retirement home. Ceremonies in the evening included a pictorial review of the home's history and the persentation of new members for 1974. For those unable to leave their rooms in the new area closed circuit television was installed to relay the program into the new building.

Dairymen claim reduction would hurt them

No cut in milk prices, says ag chief

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state director of agriculture indicated there would be no cut in milk prices as industry spokesmen today testified that any reduction would hurt dairymen.

Director C. Brunel Christensen, who has the final say on milk prices, made the observation at the close Tuesday of the first day of hearings into the feasibility of reducing California milk prices.

"I was somewhat disappointed in the consumers' presentation," Christensen said. "I don't think at this point it would warrant another hearing to reduce prices, unless there is further testimony."

Earlier Tuesday, two economists differed over whether the price of milk could be lowered, at least at the producer level.

Consumer groups testified that the cost of milk could be reduced by 13 cents. The state, through the Department of Food and Agriculture, sets the minimum price of milk at the producer, wholesale and retail levels. The average statewide price of a half gallon now stands at 71 cents.

Dr. Paul Hand, a Pennsylvania economist, said problems described in a Senate resolution calling for the hearings could not be solved by a reduction in price of drinking milk by producers.

"Costs of production in no way justifies any reduction in producer prices," said Hand.

Polly Roberts, who is working on her Ph.D. in agricultural economics at the University of California at Berkeley, said "I believe I can show that government price-setting and quotas do produce a price on the order of five to six cents per half gallon above a free market price."

She said if it is the objective of the Bureau of Milk Stabilization to set milk prices at the free market price, it has "way overshot."

Dairymen testified that they could not undergo a price reduction.

"Our conclusion is inescapable and emphatic," said Jay Goold, executive vice president of the League of California Milk producers. "In fact, economic conditions as indicated by our cost data show most clearly that unless there is a decline in feed prices within the immediate future, a producer price increase will have to be solicited."

Agricultural officials emphasized that the hearings were informational and if a price reduction was recommended at the producer level another statewide hearing would have to be called. If the price was reduced on the wholesale or retail level it would be done through regional hearings.

Roy Alper, lobbyist for the Ralph Nader affiliated California Citizen Action group, testified that demand is well below 1973 levels while supply is well above those levels.

"Milk has been dumped, and 150 million pounds of nonfat dry milk have been purchased by federal support programs to keep the whole system from collapsing," Alper said.

Consumers attacked the dumping of 420,000 gallons of fresh skim milk this summer by the California Milk Producers Association.

"The destruction of foods of any kind," said Ruth Ehrlich, legislative chairperson of the California Democratic Council, "when at least seven million Americans have been added to the poverty list because of higher food prices ... has been declared immoral and a crime against humanity ..."

But industry spokesmen said the dumping "came about after every effort was made to obtain transportation and a plant in which to process the milk."

Assemblyman Joseph B. Montoya, D-La Puente, accused the department of using a "lazy man's way" in setting milk prices. He said the procedures benefit big supermarkets.

In the past 18 months, the state, through the Department of Agriculture, has granted price increases amounting to 15 cents a half gallon.

JOSHUA-T

If you are one of the many women in the valley who have said "There just isn't anywhere near to buy something special to wear", then the Village has the answer for you. The Joshua-T, a women's boutique, carries the right look for the modern woman, but specializes in subtle enhancement of the female mystic.

Sue Harrison believes a woman should dress and look all woman. Those pastel colors, revealed calves, and high-lighted lines help a woman fulfill her role in a masculine world.

Things that make you a woman, you will find at the Joshua-T: dresses, sweaters, skirts, blouses, etc. There is a new boutique in the valley, a shop for women and those who love them.

PLANTASIA

Managed by Hope and Angel Chavez, Plantasia is a top line plant and terrarium boutique. Hope and Angel put the personal touch into their arrangements and terrariums. They specialize in plant care, offering classes in house plants, hanging and potted plants and terrariums. At Plantasia's plant hospital many a sick and dying plant has been brought through the wards of intensive care to complete regenerated green.

Plants make great gifts and are a real treat for oneself. Whenever looking for a terrarium or special plant, do not forget the valley's finest plant shop and plant care center, Plantasia.

QUINN STUDIO

Just to walk through this creative little plaster and ceramic shop, is worth the trip down to Pomona Valley Center's Village. Not only does Quinn Studio offer a complete selection of unfinished plaster and ceramic figurines, wall plaques, and arts and craft supplies, but Margie Quinn, the shop's artist and creator, offers finished painted figures of a most extraordinary sort. Her special touch make these cold, hard little pieces of plaster just wiggle they come so alive. Don't miss the opportunity to see these special home decorations

Margie and Ray Quinn also teach classes in painting, gold leafing, and antiquing. Margie claims any one can do it. She even offers to reveal her secrets on how to make objects come to life to anyone who simply asks.

THE FINE LINE

No longer do we have to truck all the way over to Westwood, Hollywood or the beach for the funky look. Custom created embroidery, studs, sequins, or silk screen on faded denims, jackets, t-shirts, underwear or tops all make the scene at the Village.

The Fine Line, a pant and top shop, specializes in the custom look. Idamae Harkey, one of the California Lifestyles's upcoming designers, raps with her clients as she personally puts the final pazzaz to some preordered creations. The rustic decor and casual atmosphere encourages one to sit on the floor for a smoke and dream of tomorrow's children. For the look of eternal youth see the Fine Line, upstairs in the Village.

HOUSE OF 1001 WIGS

If having the right look at the right time is the key to success, then Allen and Hamilton Brewart seem to have found that key. House of 1001 Wigs numbers one through four have been so successful that number five just couldn't wait. Domestic and foreign wigs ranging in style and color from the more conservative mature look to the wild ideas of today's fashion leaders, are all a part of this colorful shop.

The right look at the right time is not enough without the best stylists and wig consultants to personalize that look. A quiet spirit of peace envelopes the Taj Mahal decored shop and one can't help but feel that these unhurried stylists really like and care about those they serve. The tranquil life still exists and can be found at the Village in the House of 1001 Wigs.

JEWEL BUG

Here's a store for those who love do-it-yourself jewelry. The Jewel Bug, owned and operated by Tom and Celeste Siciliano, carries findings, beads, studs and all the items you'll need to create your own exciting jewelry. Tom and Celeste have another store in the Whittier area which has been extremely successful. They offer classes and also demonstrations in how to make jewelry. Tom and Celeste have learned that in the jewelry business it is necessary to give a lot of attention and service to your clientele. We try to offer the widest selection of merchandise possible and even more importantly we know how to create beautiful jewelry. While their merchandise appeals to women, men also will find something to relate to in their selection of hobbies and crafts.

REED FAMILY CANDIES

To satisfy the desires of your sweet tooth, Reed Family Candies will be providing the finest in chocolates and candies that money can buy. The family tradition of Reed Candies has been one of quality and excellence. From their clean kitchens come dark and light chocolates daily, freshly packaged to make the perfect gift for a wife or sweetheart. Jerry Reed, owner of the shop, has been involved in the candy business all his life. Jerry has developed a discerning taste for candy and boasts that his dental record hasn't been affected in the least. When it is time for something special think of Reed Family Candies and you'll be glad you did, located right in the middle of all the action in the Village.

MORNING STAR

The most exciting item of jewelry in the past months has been tourquoise. The Indian stone has been the rage of jewelry lovers everywhere. Joan Nolan will open the Morning Star carrying one of the most outstanding selections of tourquoise and silver jewelry pieces that is found in the southern California area. Teaming with authentic merchandise, a walk through their store will reveal pictoral representations of how the Indians of the southwest create their jewelry. Joan has studied and investigated Indian Jewelry for several years and has become an expert on it. Her shop is laden with everything from small rings to the most lavish and exciting squash blossoms.

PASTA PUSHERS

Coming to the Pomona Valley Center's new development will be the Pasta Pushers. That has to be the most unforgettable name for an Italian restaurant you've heard in a long time. John Ligueri and Tony Perez, both utilizing their Roman heritage are putting together a delictable menu of pizza, lasanga, spaghetti and many other savory meals. The rustic decor of the Pasta Pushers makes dining a pleasure. Each and every Italian food lover will find his taste buds tingled here. This becomes the second restaurant which is under the ownership of Tony and John. We are bringing the best of our experience in terms of food and decor to the Village. The walls have been neatly decorated with unique table settings. Plan to have a bite to eat while you wander through the Village at the Pasta Pushers.

OTHER NEW STORES

While visiting the Village, four other new stores have been added to better serve you at Pomona Valley Center. Doc Frinodig's Ski Show, the shop with the amazing decor offers snow and water ski equipment, surf boards and tennis supplies and clothing. Mr. Wulfe's Fashion Den gives a woman a break from high prices by offering name brand clothing at off brand prices. Youngest Babytown is the center's newest store specializing in clothing and accessories for babies and children. For the best in home cooking at prices you have to pay to believe, give yourself a cooking break and take yourself or your family to the Golden Flame on the corner of Holt and East End.

INFLATION SUMMIT MEETING

The mall of the Pomona Valley Shopping Center has been selected as the site for the 35th Congressional District Inflation Summit Meeting to be held on September 27-28, it was announced by summit chairman Jim Lloyd.

The local summit will coincide with President Ford's national economic summit meeting. A verbatim transcript of the local meeting will be submitted to Ford and the Congress.

Lloyd said the Pomona Valley Center, situated on Holt Avenue between East End and Mills Streets, is ideal for encouraging full participation by local shoppers.

"We wanted to locate the meeting in a shopping center in order to bring this important conference directly to local shoppers who daily experience the impact of runaway inflation on their personal budgets," said Lloyd, who is forming the sponsoring committee for the local summit.

"We felt we would seriously restrict consumer participation if we held the summit at either a governmental facility or even at one of our many fine institutions of higher education."

Lloyd said the two day conference will focus on the impact of inflation and unemployment on 35th District residents and the development of an anti-inflation public policy.

Expert opinion by economists and representatives of a cross section of local organizttions will be sandwiched between public testimony by local shoppers, according to Lloyd.

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LOSE FAT!

THE "MODEL ETTS" WAY HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT NO CALORIE COUNTING! NO EXERCISES! NO SPECIAL DIETS!

Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without counting out one special food. HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS. These New York doctors discovered a food additive called "MODEL-ETTS." "Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your calorie intake by a natural appetite curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food. Before "Model-etts" was offered to you, it was tested clinically by the doctors on a large group of non-graduate overweight men and women. The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found: 1. Weight loss of 1 pound without any ill effects was... 2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight. "Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food additive, not a drug... So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is chandler or regular, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it. You can get a full month's supply of "Model-etts" for $3.00 on money back guarantee. In clinical tests, "Model-etts" was 96% successful. "Model-etts" may not be 100% successful in all cases, but you take no risk in trying "Model-etts" on our Money Back Guarantee. Come to General Nutrition to get "MODEL-ETTS." The sooner you start, the sooner you will begin the loss of weight you want for...

Sounds too good to be true, but it is true!

How Model-etts Curbs Your Appetite: In the opinion of the supervising physician, based on the average of weight losses in the clinical tests, 1 tablet of "Model-etts" taken with a glass of water has the hungers satisfying capacity of 1 pound boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 5 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 6 calories.

THE HAPPENING

The village, Pomona Valley Center's new boutique center, will celebrate its grand opening, The Happening, October 3, 4 & 5. Mr. Florence, promotion director at Pomona Valley Center, said that The Happening would be as big and exciting as the Anniversary last March.

The Happening will feature live music, prizes, a girl watcher's contest, prizes, goofy Olympics, prizes, food and more prizes. Everyone is invited to come down to visit the new shops and join the celebration.

Mr. Florence also stated The Happening is just the beginning of a series of exciting activities planned through Christmas, like America Week, Sidewalk Sales, Lion's Club Haunted House, Old Baldy Council Explorer Car Auction, Allen's Petting Zoo, Chess Tourney, and high school co-ed contest, to name just a few.

Jaworski seeks permission to tell all on Nixon role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd is considering legislation that would permit Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski to make a full report on former President Nixon's involvement in the Watergate scandal.

Jaworski wrote Byrd and seven other senators that he lacked the authority to issue a final report on Nixon's actions.

"I'm considering legislation to remedy this," Byrd told UPI. He said he hadn't drawn up a specific proposal yet.

But it was learned that one option under consideration is to turn the Watergate grand jury into a special grand jury under Jaworski's direction.

Jaworski could then deliver his evidence to the grand jury, which could then return a "presentment" detailing Nixon's role in Watergate.

Byrd and other Democratic senators, unhappy that President Ford's pardon of Nixon had blocked possible prosecution, had urged Jaworski to include Nixon's role in his final report.

"It is our tentative belief that the existing authority for the issuance of reports most likely does not justify the inclusion of a detailed report on the matters you suggest," Jaworski said in the letters to senators.

In an apparent appeal for legislation to broaden his powers, Jaworski added: "Unless authorized, our primary concern relates to the protection of individual rights and to the proper scope of a prosecutor's treatment of criminal allegations."

Jaworski, who successfully subpoenaed almost 85 White House tapes, has compiled the most complete body of evidence existing on Nixon's role in the scandal.

Only 19 tapes were turned over to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment investigation. The White House released an edited version of 35 tapes.

In a related move, two Democratic senators proposed legislation which would cancel the agreement between the White House and Nixon giving Nixon custody of the tapes in five years.

The proposal by Senate Watergate Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., would give the government permanent custody of the tapes and prevent their being destroyed.

Nelson urged Congress to act quickly on the bill, since the agreement provides that the tapes be destroyed immediately if Nixon should die.

'GOD TO JUDGE' — President Ford was right to pardon former President Nixon, but Nixon will ultimately have to answer to God, says evangelist Billy Graham.

Bank took hunting dog as collateral

DIMEBOX, Tex. (UPI) — The Little First State Bank of Dimebox has lowered its prime interest rate today from 12 per to 11½ because its directors decided it would be in the public interest.

"Our board of directors worried over this all night and we decided it was up to the banks to project leadership during this time of extreme monetary crisis," said bank board chairman Frank W. Head.

"Even though we are not one of the largest banks in the state or nation, we want to stand and be counted as doing something positive for our economy."

Most banks in the nation are charging a prime rate, the interest charged big commercial borrowers, of 12 per cent, and the rise in this rate during the past several months has been blamed for helping cause the sagging economy.

"Now we know that General Motors is not going to be coming out to Dimebox to borrow $500 million," said John E. Whitmore III, a spokesman for Head's company which controls many of the little country banks in southeast Texas. "The assets of this little bank are $1.7 million. But it serves the people."

Dimebox —there used to be an Old Dimebox and a New Dimebox —is a German-Czech settlement in the rolling hills and black, sandy loam soil country along the Yegua River of Central Texas. It survives on an economy of peanuts, pecans, grains, hogs, poultry, cattle and a little oil and gas.

"The Dimebox bank is a country bank heavily involved in individual and agricultural loans," Whitmore said. "Its the real bastion of personal banking where the banker looks at the person a good deal more than he looks at the collateral."

Head tells the story of one such loan.

"The bank took one hunting dog as collateral," he said. "The banker knew that loan was safe and he knew that was a good hunting dog.

"He also knew that fellow would turn in his wife before he would turn in Jubilee."

County backs boost in sales tax for mass transit use

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The county Board of Supervisors Tuesday agreed to support a plan to take an additional $205 million a year from the taxpayers for mass transit, while conceding that voters will be disenchanted because the current system is inoperative.

The board voted 3-1 to endorse Proposition A. If voters approve the proposition in November, the sales tax will be increased by one cent within the Southern California Rapid Transit District, to pay for more buses and a proposed high speed transit system.

"If the election were held tomorrow it would fail because of the strike," said board Chairman Kenneth Hahn.

Supervisor Ernest Debs said he voted for the measure "with my fingers crossed."

The RTD's drivers and mechanics have been on strike for 38 days. The supervisors warned that if the unions win substantially more than the offers they have already rejected, it would "mortgage" the RTD's future income, such as from the sales tax increase, and will stiffen public resistance to a tax hike.

The RTD now carries about 450,000 fares a day, about 4 per cent of the population of its area.

The supervisors also moved to gain greater control over management of the transit system, voting 4-0 to instruct the county counsel to draw up a proposal for a state law changing the structure of the RTD's board of directors.

Presently the board has 11 members, five named by the supervisors, two by the mayor of Los Angeles and four representing major travel "corridors." The supervisors want the number of directors cut to five, all to be named by the supervisors.

Reagan signs CHP annual pay hike bill

BRYTE (UPI) — A bill giving California Highway Patrolmen annual pay raises totaling an estimated $12 million has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure (AB3801) by Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, was signed Tuesday by the governor during groundbreaking ceremonies for the CHP's new $11.5 million cadet academy west of Sacramento.

The legislation requires the state Personnel Board to set Patrol salaries according to the average pay for equivalent officers in the state's five largest metropolitan police departments.

Salaries were previously pegged to the average pay for 20 select police departments, including smaller ones where wages are well below metropolitan cities.

The California Highway Patrol Association had conducted an extensive publicity campaign for the bill and in the process won Reagan's support.

"When I leave here (the ceremonies) with this bill I will probably be the safest person on the highway," Reagan said.

In dedicating the academy, Reagan called it a monument to the "embattled few" 6,000 CHP officers who patrol the state's 100,000 miles of highways and rural roads.

When completed, the academy will cost the state $13.5 million, of which $4.5 million will be provided by the federal government. On 457 acres, it will provide education and training facilities for CHP cadets.

More tourists visiting Peru

LIMA (UPI) — In the first three months of 1974, 68,813 foreign tourists visited Peru, representing an increase of 21.9 per cent over the same period the previous year, according to the ministry of industry and tourism.

The ministry said that the figure included 28,666 South Americans, 19,313 North Americans, 14,141 Europeans, 3,316 Central Americans and 2,677 from other areas of the world.

37-year hope for regional Prado Park nears reality

A project started 37 years ago will officially leave the starting blocks on Oct. 8.

That's when the site for the future Prado Regional Park south of Chino will be dedicated in a public ceremony.

San Bernardino County plans to develop a park with lakes and campsites on 2,000 acres of lush land in an area east of Euclid Avenue and south of Pine Avenue, which is leased from the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Its main attraction will be a 56-acre lake where a person can sail a boat or fish for bass or trout. There will also be facilities for camping and picnics.

The ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. at the park site. County Supervisor Robert Townsend of Chino will serve as master of ceremonies.

Invitations have been sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan, State Sen. Ruben Ayala, U.S. Rep. Victor Veysey, Assemblyman John Briggs, and members of city councils in Chino, Montclair, Upland and Ontario.

Special guests will be members of the Moreno family who once raised cattle, dairy cows, hogs and farm crops in a section of the vast basin. Louis Moreno, a Chino police officer, has been involved with a committee to coordinate the park opening in July 1976 with the nation's bicentennial celebration.

The program will conclude with a luncheon at the Western Hills Country Club.

A progress report on the park's development was outlined Wednesday by Townsend. The final design stage is set for completion by Oct. 18 with the design review and approval cycle expected to require at least two months.

With an allowance of 10 weeks for design revisions, construction bids, preparation, review and acceptance, actual work could start by next Feb. 1, he added.

Work will take about 17 months to complete, which includes filling the lake and providing landscaping. The park should then be ready for public use by July 1976.

The opening will climax a proposal that first surfaced in 1937. When that area then became a flood control basin, the West End Fish and Game Club proposed it serve residents as a regional park.

County officials included such a park on the master plan in 1965. But then the park idea nearly disappeared after state agencies twice denied funds for its construction.

But on the third attempt, the State Water Commission on Dec. 1, 1972, did allocate $1.3 million to assist in its construction.

Since that approval, however, inflation has caused the construction cost to increase by $800,000, said Townsend.

The county is now preparing a new application to seek additional state funds for the project.

In his presentation, Townsend made these observations:

—The park entrance will be from Euclid Avenue about a half mile south of Pine Avenue.

—Two main dams will be constructed to create the 56-acre lake and three minor dams will be built to prevent debris from entering the lake.

—The water supply will come from a tertiary treatment plant in Ontario. This is operated by the Chino Basin Municipal Water District.

—There will be three miles of roads inside the park with 12 parking lots to accommodate 600 vehicles.

—Major structures will include an entrance station, boat house and dock for 90 boats--20 rowboats, 15 canoes, 40 paddleboats and 15 sailboats; an observation pavilion atop a 200,000 gallon, 30-foot high water tank; 16 restrooms; and maintenance building.

—The park will contain six family picnic areas with picnic tables drinking fountains and barbecue grills; five group picnic areas with tables, kitchen shelter and serving counter, barbecue grills and fire ring; walk-in family picnic area with tables, drinking fountains and grills; recreation vehicle camping area with 50 spaces; tent camping area with 21 sites; recreation vehicle dump station; and two fish cleaning stations.

—The park will have a capacity for about 2,500 persons for day use. Officials expect an average attendance of 650 visitors per day.

—The fee schedule will be 50 cents per car per day; $3 per car for overnight camping; lake use permit, $1.50 per day during trout season and $1 per day for "out-of-season."

The park cost includes: construction, $3,479,000; design and professional services, $230,000; contract administration, $57,000; real estate, $277,000; and park equipment and contingencies, $110,000.

In addition to the 2,000 acres leased from the U.S. Corps of Engineers, the county also purchased 86 acres along Johnson Avenue to complete the property required and also for a service road, Townsend explained.

There are openings in preschool program

There are openings for 4-year-olds in the State Preschool Program at three schools in the Pomona district.

The children must be from low-income or welfare families, and need not live in the school area where they register.

More children will be accommodated in classrooms at Allison, Lexington and San Jose elementary schools.

Children are served snacks and not lunches. Parents are responsible for transportation. Parents must provide birth certificates and immunization records for their children, and proof of income.

Parent participation in the classroom is required. Preschool classes are held Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Enrollments are accepted at the preschool office at Kingsley Elementary School, Portable C 1170 Washington St.

Sunkist planning to build $2 million research center

A new laboratory and research center for Sunkist Growers, Inc., topped construction projects last month in Ontario.

The facility, valued at $2 million, will be located at 760 W. Sunkist St., adjacent to the existing plant.

City officials reported issuing 75 permits during August which represented a combined valuation of $2,478,686. This boosted the year's total so far to 726 permits and a $15 million valuation.

Other major projects last month were two more shops in the Alpha Beta shopping center at Francis Street and Euclid Avenue. A permit was previously issued for the Alpha Beta market. The new shops have 3,600 square feet and 7,800 square feet of floor space.

Other permits included an office building valued at $96,000 at 1550 N. Palmetto Ave. and a liquor store and two adjoining rental units valued at $75,000 at Euclid Avenue and Philadelphia Street.

A breakdown of building permits by category includes:

Alterations to dwellings, 41 permits, $91,009; commercial buildings, four permits, $236,000; industrial building, one permit, $2,086,000; alterations to commercial and industrial buildings, four permits, $10,935; miscellaneous buildings, 22 permits, $53,842; and houses demolished, one, no valuation.

Valley resident faces rape count

An Upland man has been charged with rape in an incident which occurred in Claremont during the weekend.

The suspect, David Lee Harter, 26, was arraigned before Pomona Mupicipal Court Commissioner Thomas A. Peterson. Harter's preliminary hearing was scheduled for Oct. 1 and he was released on his own recognizance.

The defendant is accused of rape and one other sex offense involving a 25-year-old woman who said he forced her to submit after she let him into the garden of an apartment to look for a lost ball.

Police said Harter has denied any coercion in the incident.

Foothill Blvd.

The eastbound lanes of Foothill Boulevard between Rochester and Etiwanda avenues in Cucamonga will be closed for about two months for construction work, said state highway officials.

Work crews will install a box culvert and concrete pipes for drainage of the future Devore Freeway now being constructed.

$3.25 a pound for 1,198-pound steer

MSAC student scores in livestock contest

Richard Pitts, a Mt. San Antonio College student, received $3.25 a pound for his 1,198-pound Grand Champion steer Wednesday at the Junior Livestock auction at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona.

The Walnut Valley Kiwanis Club bid the top price for the Charolais Cross.

The top bid per pound for a Grand Champion market swine was received for a Hampshire-Duroc Cross, owned by Bonnie Brown of Mira Loma, at $3.40 a pound, and bought for Farmer John.

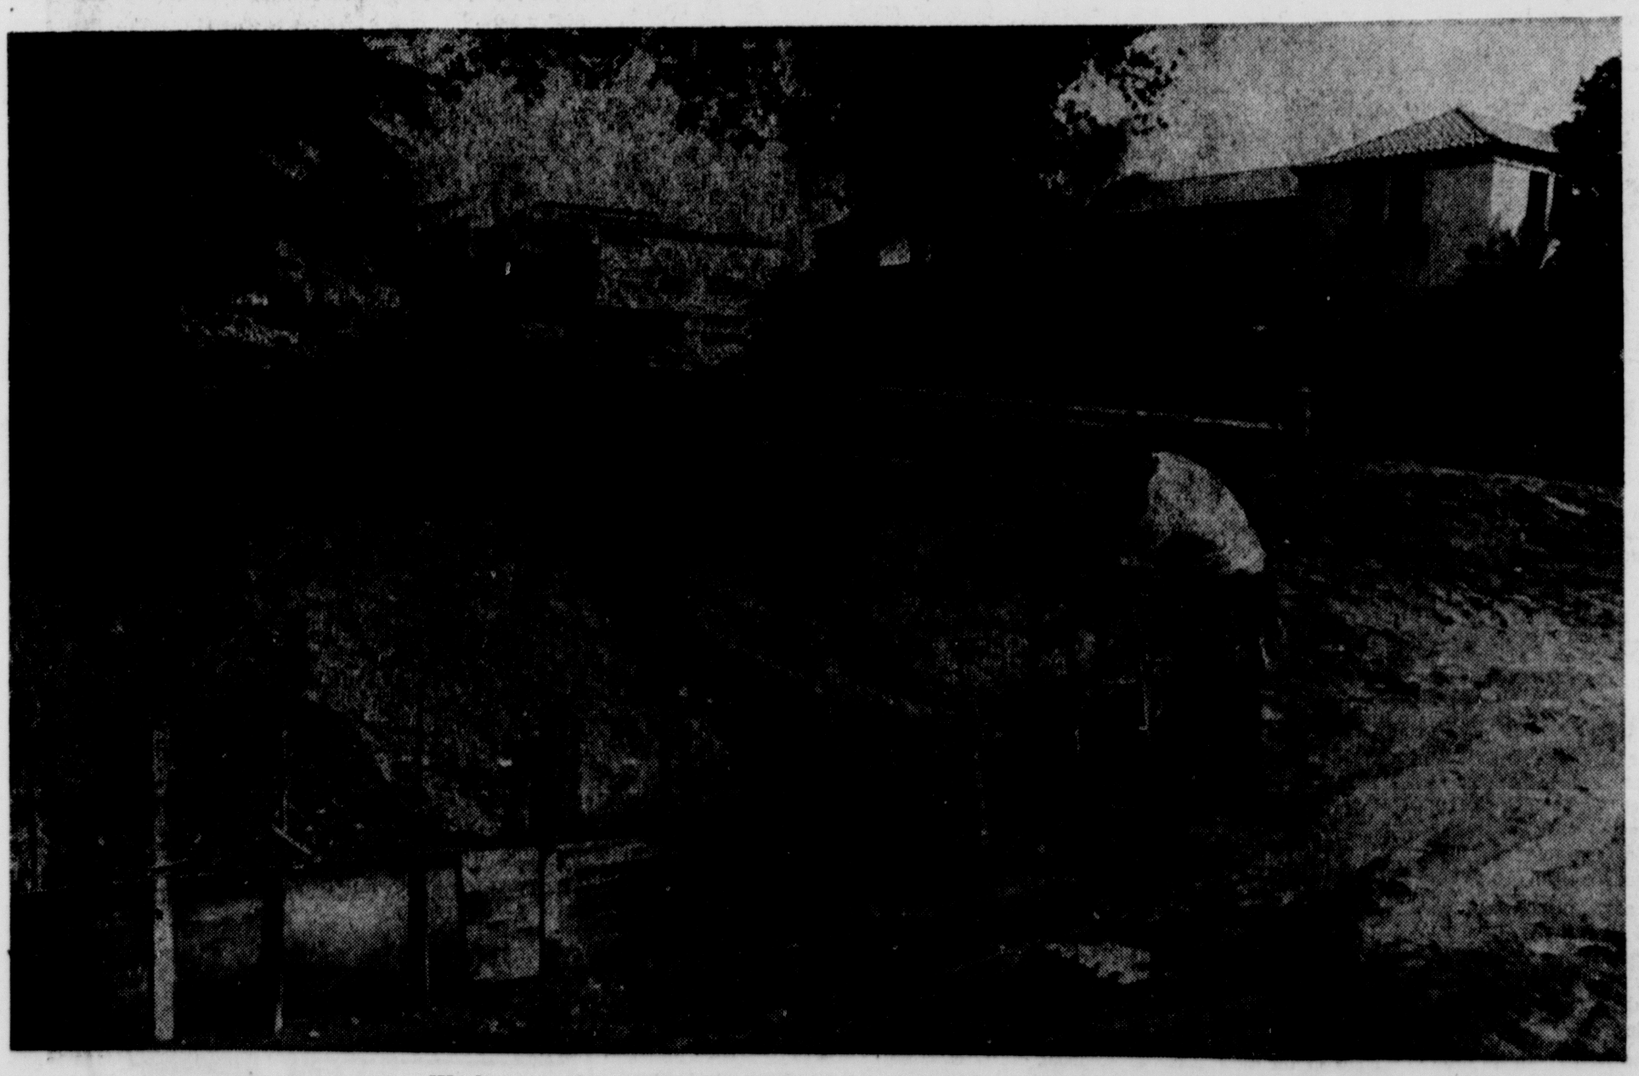
Jaime Farao of Santa Maria received top bid of the day and sold a 109-pound Grand Champion Suffolk market lamb for $8.25 a pound.

The Reserve Grand Champion, owned by Bob Paach of San Luis Obispo, went for $2.85 a pound, and Pitts was able to get 72.5 cents a pound for his College Reserve Champion Suffolk lamb.

Judie Howie of the Chino Busy Farmers 4-H Club received 95 cents a pound for her Champion Dorset lamb. Jill Howie saw her Champion Southdown Cross go for 80 cents a pound.

First National Bank of Chino bought Jeff Howie's Reserve Champion Southdown for $1.12 a pound.

The college students, Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club members put 81 market swine, 140 market lambs and 141 market beef on the auction block Wednesday for local buyers.



CONSTRUCTION DOWNTOWN

Workmen at the new financial center across Mission Boulevard from the Pomona City Hall set the forms for curb construction around the new Bank of America building. The financial center project area extends from Main Street to Garey Avenue, with Thomas Street no longer extending between Mission and Fourth Street. In the background is the old Pomona Post Office, which will be razed to make way for the multistory United California Bank building at Mission and Garey Avenue.

Study on prison to be explored

"The Stanford Prison Experiment" will be the title of a public program to be presented Tuesday at the Pomona Public Library.

The 7:30 p.m. program will feature a slide presentation with narration by Bill Hanks, coordinator of Pomona Valley Drug Program.

The Stanford Prison Experiment was done in 1971. The experiment simulated prison conditions with students acting as prisoners and guards. The experiment has been widely acclaimed due to the mental attitudes that the students seemed to develop almost overnight under the simulated conditions.

The program will be presented free of charge.

Tight rein inflation curb

By one popular yardstick, a recession has now been signaled by the decline in the Gross National Product (GNP) for the second quarter of 1974, coming as it does on the heels of a decline in the first quarter. We hope this does not prompt Congress or the Administration to haul out once again the battered old anti-recession weapon of Keynesian economics — a tax cut or an enlarged budget deficit to restore some steam to the economy.

When the GNP report is sized up against the latest round of cost of living figures, it is clear that inflation is still our No. 1 economic problem. As much as the government might like to promise some relief from the sting of recession, it cannot do so without yielding ground in the more crucial effort to restrain inflation.

It has been a foregone conclusion that reducing or eliminating deficits in the federal budget, and the companion policy of the Federal Reserve Board limiting the growth of the money supply, would reduce industrial and business expansion with a consequent bad effect on employment. However, that is a penalty the economy must pay if we are going to make headway against inflation, which is going to be with us as long as there are too many dollars chasing too few goods.

This leads us to agree with FRB Chairman Arthur Burns in his admonition to Congress the other day that it ought to be considering even tighter reins on the federal budget. In his view the "balanced" budgets now being considered are not really what they seem. There are so many "off-budget" spending and loan programs not included, he says, that the $3.5 billion deficit in the last fiscal year actually amounted to a $21 billion deficit in practical terms.

Economist Walter W. Heller is taking issue with Mr. Burns on the significance of federal spending as an inflationary force. He sees nothing wrong with the government going back into the red for the sake of a "modest stimulus to the economy." We hope Congress will remember that the inflation we are saddled with today got its first big push when Mr. Heller was the chief economic adviser to the Johnson Administration. At that time the government tried to finance a war on poverty and a war in Vietnam by bathing itself in red ink.

We are sure Mr. Burns and Mr. Heller sympathize equally with the Americans who are caught in the vise of simultaneous business slow-down and inflation. Mr. Burns, however, is on more solid ground in seeing that our woes will only grow worse if we abandon belt-tightening in the government for the sake of trying to achieve a softer landing from our wild flight into inflation.

Whether or not we diagnose the latest business statistics as "recession" may depend on whose economics textbook we've been reading. The experience of the last decade, however, should tell us that a resort to more deficit spending at this point would only foster the illusion that our inflation problem is less serious than it really is.

Keeping score on predictions

What this country needs is a national registry of "experts" that would keep score on their predictions for the future.

Such a registry, suggests Columbia University sociologist Amital Etzioni, would screen out those "experts" whose advice proved faulty in the past and would point out those whose predictions have a way of coming true.

For example, he notes that Dr. Philip H. Abelson, editor of Science magazine, warned way back on Feb. 11, 1971, that the reliance of the industrial nations on petroleum had made their technological and social well being "vulnerable to manipulation by some otherwise unimportant Middle Eastern states."

That, says Etzioni, is an example of an expert dismissed at the time as an "alarmist" whose prediction came true.

"The nation thus might benefit greatly," he writes in Human Behavior magazine, "from a national registry for experts where all predictions will be listed. . . . After all, if you can get such a 'poop sheet' on the performance of every horse that runs on a racetrack, why not on people who advise the policy makers?"

Thoughts for today

So Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul; and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year they met with the church, and taught a large company of people; and in Antioch the disciples were for the first time called Christians. — Acts 11:25, 26.

Rocky's record as a 'public servant'

Few readers are even partly aware of the many years of painstaking preparation for a Rockefeller coup. First, a look at Nelson Rockefeller's record as a "public servant."

The financial newspaper "Barron's" for Dec. 17, 1973 reports, "Nelson Rockefeller has spent the taxpayer's money as if it were his own.

Since he moved to Albany a decade ago, New York's expenditures have nearly tripled, while New Yorkers—local businessmen in particular—have been saddled with the heaviest tax burden in the U.S. . . . Since Rocky took office, the minimum rate on the personal income tax has more than doubled, from 7 per cent to a ponderable 15 per cent. . . ."

When total taxes are considered, including sundries such as cigarette tax, gasoline tax, etc., "New York's tax load has been multiplied nearly five times," Barron's states. Such is the record of Mr. Rockefeller who now proclaims a desire to "bring fiscal sanity to Washington."

Worse yet is the family that preys together; the four Rockefeller brothers who use their vast influence and tax-free finance to further control the fields of oil, high finance, politics, foreign and domestic policy, ecology, education, religion, and the news media.

Since these Rockefellers are thought of as capitalists, you'd think they would use their tax-free funds to foster the philosophy of individual liberty. The opposite is true. You will be unable to find a single project in the history of Rockefeller foundations which promotes free enterprise. Perhaps that is because the senior Rockefeller justified his monoplies with the remark: "Competition is a sin." Like father, like son.

The Rockefeller Brothers financed the National Education Assn. which declared in 1934, "a dying laissez faire must be completely destroyed and all of us, including the owners, must be subjected to a large degree of social control."

Congressman Eugene E. Cox observed the Rockefeller foundations were long ago dedicated to financing "individuals and organizations whose business it has been to get Communism into private and public schools."

Rockefellers poured millions into the London School of Economics founded by Sidney Webb, father of the Fabian Socialist Society.

They bankrolled the Yenching University in Peking and filled it with Red professors who recruited and trained (among others) a Communist named Chou En-lai.

They've supportd the National Council of Churches which has for years parroted the Moscow line while claiming to represent the Protestants. They have financed "Metro Government" under which city, county and state lines are being erased.

They helped finance the ecology freaks into a pressure group that created our energy crisis and made America dependent upon foreign fuel.

All in all, the Rockefeller brothers are planning to present us with a dictatorship of their aristocracy disguised as a welfare state. The 25th amendment requires that two thirds of both the Senate and the House must confirm the appointment of our second unelected ruler, the man who would be president in 1976. It's not too late. We await to hear the reaction of our representatives to having a member of the House of Rockefeller rule. —F.F. Scudder, Claremont.

Garages overcharge postal service

WASHINGTON — With President Ford calling for government austerity, we have decided to help him by keeping a watch on waste. We will publish reports from time to time on governmen extravagance.

Postmaster General Ted Klassen, for example, ordered local postmasters to send postal vehicles to private garages for servicing. His idea, apparently, was to save the fuel it requires to drive the vehicles to government repair centers.

But the private garages unhappily have been charging up to 50 per cent more for parts and repairs. When the extra charges are multiplied by 103,000 postal vehicles, the result adds millions to the cost of delivering the mails.

To make matters worse, the 5,000 employes of the government garages are now sitting around with little to do.

We have obtained postal documents which show some of the price differences the taxpayers have underwritten. In Fort Lee, N.J., for instance, a private contractor charges $3.50 for a gas line filter that is available for 38 cents in government maintenance centers.

A battery in Teaneck, N.J., set the taxpayers back $44.90. The same battery costs only $17.86 in government garages. The taxpayers also got stuck with a $58 bill for two new universal joints, which were available at government garages for $4.12.

We made spot checks in Detroit, Los Angeles and other cities, where we found similar examples. All across the nation, apparently, the taxpayers are paying excessive repair charges.

We also have found evidence of waste in the "star routes" which link post offices in different cities with airport terminals and other transportation outlets. Private contractors move the mail over about 14,000 star routes at an annual cost over $262 million.

Government auditors concluded after an investigation that 16 of 85 star routes in Illinois could be eliminated, saving about $185,000 not to mention 88,000 gallons of fuel.

The Illinois example, according to our information, is typical of the waste in other states. Since the 85 routes which the auditors investigated represent less than one per cent of all star routes, the waste could be staggering.

Mail delivery, meanwhile, is deteriorating.

Footnote: Postal spokesmen say they are taking corrective action to straighten out the star routes and the maintenance mess.

PAUL HARVEY

Fall in love with your wife

Standing on the corner scanning the current crop of magazines on the newsstand, it is obvious that there is an insatiable appetite for sex. But the titillation offered by such publications is more and more prepared by and for women.

Playboy magazine is on the decline (a 6 per cent circulation decline in the last six months). Playboy enterprises everywhere are suffering.

Playgirls are the now market for the mercenaries. What used to be called "ladies' magazines" now include in their tables of contents titles which would have shocked the boys in the barbershop a generation ago.

But most of the sex articles for moderns are justified by the signature of some Ph.D. who gives pulp paper porno a hard cover of "science." This way mother and daughter are reading a "scientific article."

Also, sociologists justify almost any kind of behavior with statistics asserting that "of 4,611 girls age 15 to 19, 23 per cent of the white and 46 per cent of the blacks had intercourse before marriage."

Nor is the preoccupation with sex ours alone. A British psychologist writes in a Boys' Club magazine that it's "never too soon to teach children about the joy of sex."

A Soviet doctor has written a book called "Female Sexual Pathology" which he says is "designed for other doctors," but his Kinsey-style survey is concerned mostly with the "degree of sexual fulfillment for Soviet women."

In Detroit a nondoctor — a former factory worker and gardener — sought to operate as a "medical clinic" a house where stand-in sex partners were available for "therapy."

George Gallup's pollsters report American attitudes toward premarital sex are much more "liberal" than four years ago — 68 per cent used to consider it wrong; now only 48 per cent.

And anybody who suggests that overexploiting the subject is making it tedious, even tiresome, is construed as having some unhealthy hang-up.

I see in the new issue of Redbook magazine an article by some sociology professor who says half of the wives he surveyed approve extramarital affairs because their husbands don't demonstrate enough variety in the bedroom. So they seek other bed partners.

This Pandora's box of potential quackery was opened innocently enough by the valid research of Drs. William Masters and Virginia Johnson Masters.

Their classic, "Human Sexual Response," published in 1966 was intended to delineate reasons and remedies for sexual dysfunction.

Now these responsible researchers are so distressed by the subsequent pox of charlatanism that they are traveling the country — allowing unprecedented interviews — exposing the "overkillers."

In Esquire magazine when it was considered naughty there was an article called, "Fall In Love With Your Wife." I was about 14 when I snuck a peek at that issue and the seeming contradiction in the title focused my attention a full generation before I knew what in the world the author was trying to say.

I know now. And with everybody else offering remedies for what ails us, I offer this: Fall in love with your wife. And from what I observe of Drs. Masters and Johnson, I expect they would second that notion with enthusiasm.

Just in jest

Today I give you another chapter in our Continuing Study of the Wonders of Modern Education. Not that it matters much to many of you, of course, but on the other hand it could prove advantageous to know about some of the new dangers a little learning can produce.

At State University of New York, in Buffalo, a study group has announced that women are more efficient in the water than males. And the sad part about it, so far as the men are concerned, is that they weren't talking about dishwater.

But I hasten to assure you that higher education has not sold out lock, stock and barrel to the liberated females. There's such a thing as men's equality, according to the Purdue University scientists. And to prove it, they have developed a safe birth control pill for men.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON

Ford's compassion a political burden

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — President Gerald Ford's decision to pardon former President Richard Nixon of any charges arising from Watergate has created a tempest in a teapot.

Ford may have been a bit premature, but his action — if taken in the same manner as which he intended it — could go a long way towards mending the national rift Watergate opened.

However it appears Ford's compassion has become a political liability to himself and a singular issue for Democrats to latch onto during this tepid season just before fall elections.

The President, since taking office, has practically one-handedly restored the Republican Party to national prominence and respect. A lot of this newfound good-will certainly is the collective relief of a nation weary of scandal and recrimination. But the man, Ford, with his clean image and determination to be candid is responsible for much of the public's willingness to once again have a little faith in its elected government.

The inevitable charge against Ford, following his pardon announcement, was that of prearranged fix. The validity of that charge will some day be determined — if nothing else, the past two years have proven nothing whispered in Washington is secret for long. But at this stage, with nothing but speculation for certain, it is just as easy to believe Ford and Nixon did not enter into a deal.

Ford's early pardon aids that belief. Politicians with the tenure of Ford and Nixon are shrewd enough to gauge timing. If a deal were struck, it would make sense to hold off the pardon until after ongoing trials of former Nixon aides are completed. By then the immediate emotion of Nixon's resignation would have cooled and pardon could be slipped in without the resultant hue and cry.

One editorial here said the ire against Nixon has never been personal — hence, the desire to see the former President tried and convicted is not vindictiveness.

That specious piety ignores the hatred brewed against Nixon even before he became President. The man has never been popular among the sophisticates. His censure has long been a standard item of conversation.

What becomes of Nixon is actually unimportant. Ford's decision was to put Watergate behind us and forge ahead to work on more important problems. With just a minimal understanding, he should be able to.

Incidentally, this is the final offering from this writer. For three-years it has been my privilege to serve you.

During that time Washington has been a hotbed of controversy. Thankfully, largely because of contact with you — the real people of this country, I managed to survive the turmoil.

There is a disease peculiar to this town called "Potomac fever." It's rarely fatal, but it is always debilitating. It comes from not remembering that Washington is not the center of the universe. This capital is pictured as the hub of a gigantic wheel, with spokes connecting the American rim. It should not and cannot be that way.

The feeling of America is not generated in this political town. This town can only reflect the people's emotions. Hold to your beliefs, and the Washington mentality cannot federalize enough to knock them down.

American doctor virtually stamped out VD from China's vast populace

I had a luncheon date today and nearly fell in love. I'm sure Jules wouldn't mind if he knew the man. He is Dr. George Hatem, 63, born in Buffalo, N.Y., of Lebanese parents, raised in Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and he is the most beloved American in The People's Republic of China.

Our date, in the regal dining room of the Peking Hotel, was arranged by two people who didn't even know each other. Mrs. Edgar P. Snow, a mutual friend who lives in Switzerland, wrote to Dr. Hatem, and Dr. Grey Dimond of Kansas City telephoned Peking in my behalf when he learned I was going to China.

I wanted especially to meet Dr. Hatem because I had been asked to write a piece for the Reader's Digest, "Sex Among China's Teen-agers. Do They Or Don't They?" I felt Dr. Hatem would be an excellent source since he is the man who performed the miracle of getting rid of prostitution and eradicating VD in the People's Republic.

Dr. Hatem (affectionately called Ma Hai Teh—which means "Virtuous One From Overseas") went to Beirut in 1929 to finish his medical education, then on to Geneva, Switzerland for his degree. He selected dermatology as his specialty and decided to spend a year in China studying tropical medicine.

In 1933, "Dr. Ma" went to Shangahi. He was appalled by the poverty and wretchedness of the masses and was ready to return to America and set up practice. Then he met the late Agnes Smedley (the only American woman buried in Peking's National Revolutionary Martyrs Memorial Park). She and her friends persuaded him that Mao's fighters desperately needed medical help, so he cast his lot with them against the invading Japanese and decided to stay.

Working behind the lines as a physician-civilian, Dr. Ma carried with him half of a five-pound note, to be matched with the other half, in order to get behind the Kuomintang lines.

He made the Long March to the Great Wall in 1935 (300,000 people started and only 30,000 made it to Yenan one year later).

Dr. Ma fell in love with a beautiful Chinese actress in 1936 and married her. They now have a son, a daughter and four grandchildren.

The good doctor recounted how "we" (he is so modest he shuns the personal pronoun "I") rounded up the prostitutes, discovered 90 per cent had VD, cured them with penicillin and rehabilitated them by changing their thinking. They were told, "You are not to blame for your plight—you have been exploited and sold into prostitution. In the New Order you can be respectable and hold good jobs. We will help you."

Many prostitutes became nurses, teachers, office and factory workers. "And then," Dr. Ma continued, "we trained cadre corps to recognize VD symptoms and we undertook a massive survey by drawing up questionnaires and doing house-to-house canvassing in search of cases. We held public meetings and educated the people so they wouldn't be ashamed of their illness. We pleaded with them to step forward and be treated. The battle cry was 'The cure is sure! Treatment is free! We cannot take syphilis and gonorrhea into the New Order.' "

Dr. Ma's confidence in this mind-boggling victory was complete and convincing. He said, "I would invite a group of venerealogists from any country to go through our cities and test one million people. I'm sure they wouldn't find more than a handful of cases."

This beloved man still has his American passport but he hasn't been "home" since 1929. The American Medical Association issued him a formal invitation. If he accepts, this column is an open invitation to come to Chicago and the lunch is on me.

AT WIT'S END

Lots of friends, but who are they?

By ERMA BOMBECK

I visited my friend who lives in a 220-room-apartment complex and with a few less people it could have been another Woodstock.

"Boy, I bet you have a lot of freinds here," I said.

"Oh yes," she beamed proudly. "There are people around all the time."

"Whose the guy over there who looks like Robert Redford?"

"Oh him, he's the one with the license plates, "2-M U C H."

"Clever, but does he have a name?"

"Who knows. There's the girl I was telling you about who uses a weak bleach. Her laundry looks like a mechanic's handkerchief. And here comes the guy everyone knows. He's a cabbage freak. Cooks it three or four times a week. Someone told him it would make him sexy. I wonder where Helpless Hanna is? She calls the super every time she has to turn on a light switch. Just can't seem to get the hang of it."

"What's her last name? Hanna who?"

"That's not her real name. We just call her that."

"Whose we?"

"A gang I see all the time. A really neat girl who fell asleep in the sauna one day and got her leg caught in the slats and Wide Load, the only guy in the apartment with a station wagon."

"There's a cute girl."

"She's a dingy," said my friend. "Put a hibachi in her closet one night to keep the air conditioner from blowing out the fire. That's the night three engines showed up. I told you about her."

"You surely are a close knit group."

"Just like a big family . . . We have some great times. There's the girl who wears an ace bandage under her string bikini for support . . . Apple Pie, the girl who has heard from her mother every day for the last two years . . . the Gift Wrapper, a guy who has such neat looking garbage, you want to auction it off . . . and the Moocher, who said he gave up cigarettes three years ago but just gave up buying them."

"This looks like a great place to have an identity crisis," I said shaking my head.

"Hey, my roommate just came home. I want you to meet her. She's great—15 pounds overweight, cooks, loves to iron, gets along great with my mother, buys neat records and for the last two years has never missed paying her rent on time. By the way, she said, turning to her, "What is your last name?"

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Extra heart beats are not harmful

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please explain to me just what a PVB is and how serious they are. About a year ago I was hospitalized quite suddenly after a visit to a doctor for this problem. I was given some medicines which didn't agree with me. And, I had no pain or indication of heart trouble. Finally, I was discharged and told to go on living a normal life. Last week I suffered severe pain in my left leg and also pain in my left arm. I began shaking uncontrollably. I called a doctor, and he would not come to the house but advised me to use hot soaks and take some Anacin.

This has me terribly upset and worried. Any explanation would be appreciated. I'm 61 years old, a widow and by myself most of the time. Could a bad fright have caused those PVBs?

DEAR READER — PVB is an abbreviation for premature ventricular beats, often called extra beats or flip flops that people sometimes feel. You can have them and never feel a thing, either. It is just a beat that comes early (premature) in the natural rhythmic beat of the heart.

Many normal people have these without heart disease. If they cause symptoms or occur frequently or with known heart disease then they can be important, otherwise, they are best ignored. That is why your doctor told you to just go on and live a normal life. I doubt they had anything at all to do with your leg and arm pain.

However, for anyone who needs medical help and can't get it, don't be dismayed because the doctor doesn't come to the house. If you have a serious problem he would need the facilities of the hospital anyway. The smart thing to do if it is really an emergency is to take a taxi or an ambulance, depending on how you feel, and go to the hospital emergency room. I don't recommend this unless you can't find a doctor. Ordinarily a doctor will ask a patient to go the hospital, and he will meet you there, if you have something serious that should have fairly immediate attention. Or, if he can't see you then the hospital staff will do so for him. Emergency rooms are for emergencies, however, and you should only use them for that. Otherwise real emergencies won't receive proper attention because of the overload. And one day you might be the emergency.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I recently read in a magazine that both mushrooms and onions courteract cholesterol in your blood. Is there any truth in that statement

DEAR READER — I'm afraid not. I do wish it were all that simple. The only thing onions and mushrooms have going for them is that both are low in fat and neither contain any cholesterol. So, it is correct to say that you could use any amounts of these you might wish to eat — in any reasonable quantity — but, I'm afraid they have no medicinal quality. Mushrooms and onions are both low calorie foods and a reasonably high percentage of the calories in mushrooms are protein. My statements on the food values of both are based on food values listed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Balanced Diet" booklet.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Old socks may solve atomic waste

By Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All of us who keep looking for signs that the human race will be able to get out of the hole it is digging for itself are heartened by the ingenuity of Japanese seamen aboard the nuclear ship Matsu.

When the Matsu sprang a radioactive leak during its sea trials, the crew tried to seal it off with 14 pounds of boiled rice which they wadded into gummy balls.

When that didn't work so well, they tried packing old socks around the reactor which reduced the leakage about 30 per cent.

Darn cleaver, those Japanese. And we can hope the outbreak of good thinking aboard the Matsu will stimulate nuclear power production in this country.

One of the main things holding back nuclear power development is disposal of radioactive wastes.

—these are among the disposal suggestions that have been considered and found to have flaws.

But as far as I can learn the Atomic Energy Commission has never given any thought to stuffing the radioactive wastes into old socks.

Certainly supply is no problem. There must be enough unmated socks in the bureau drawers of America to accommodate all the radioactive wastes likely to be produced for the next hundred years or so.

The scientific principle involved in this disposal technique is only dimly understood. It is known, however, that after long wear socks acquire a unique and powerful radiation on their own.

Presumably, the emanations from old socks tend to neutralize the radiation from atomic waste material.

If need be, the socks could be reinforced by dropping a few grains of gummy rice into the toes. But let us lating the Japanese.

Let us do some creative thinking of our own.

A couple of years ago, as I recall it, some congressman figured out that the federal government could save $50,000 a year by buying conference tables without drawers.

He pointed out that conference table drawers, which add about 10 per cent to the cost, are rarely used for anything except "discarding chewing gum and cigarette wrappers."

Nothing, I believe, came of his proposal, which may be a good thing. For conference table drawers may be the ideal place in which to store the old socks after they are stuffed with radioactive wastes.

Undoubtedly there is more unused space in government conference tables than there is in salt mines.

And if a little of the radiation should seep out, it would quickly be dispersed by the hot air generated by the confer-

Heartline: My husband and I were divorced after 27 years of marriage. Even though I worked myself, I heard someone say that I could draw on his Social Security if it is greater than mine. —M.E.

Answer: After 20 years of marriage, you could collect on your ex-husband's Social Secrutity if his benefits would be greater than yours.

Heartline: When can a person draw Social Security on a disability? — L.R.

Answer: You must be off five full calendar months before disability payments will begin. You can apply for Social Security when it has been medically determined that you will be disabled for 12 months, or the injury or illness will be expected to result in death.

Heartline: I just had my leg amputated and now I have to have a wooden leg. Will Medicare pay for this? — B.H.

Answer: Yes. Medicare will pay 80 per cent. This is covered under Part B of Medicare.

Heartline: When you are over 72, do you have to pay income tax? — W.H.

Answer: If you are over 65 and income other than Social Security is less than $4,300, you do not have to file.

Heartline: My doctor doesn't think I need an operation. I have glaucoma. I can't see very well and was wondering if I should have surgery. —E.W.

Answer: If you're not satisfied with your doctor's opinion, by all means contact another doctor for an additional opinion.

Right sport for those affected with lethargy

Football coaches pace up and down the sidelines. Boxing managers fan their fighters between rounds. Horse trainers leap up at dawn to time their animals. Baseball managers march out to the mound and yell at the umpire. All this comes to mind because a client averse to labor wants to know if there's any participant sport wherein the participant need not burn up any energy. Certainly is. Pigeon racing. A shipper will pick up the birds, deliver them to a starting point several hundred miles away, then turn them loose at the prescribed moment. They fly with hot hearts 300 miles a day. Back home, the sportsman in the rocking chair may doze, read a little, sip tea, whatever.

BIRDBRAIN

How we came by that term "birdbrain" I do not know. Relative to its size, the brain of a bird is enormous.

QUICK, without looking at your watch, which is closer to the dial, the hour hand or the minute hand. Odd how we fail to notice such. The hour hand, always.

ANOTHER little known fact about poet Walt Whitman is that although he used "I" and "me" in his own writings with large abandon, he wouldn't read anything written in the first person by anyone else.

COCKROACH

Q. "You said the average female cockroach produces 37 little roaches per litter. So how many litters does she produce?"

A. Seven in the five months of her life.

FAVORITE SPORT in the Philippines is cock fighting. Every village has a pit. Law there permits fights only on Sundays and holidays.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY researchers say they've proved that men are inclined to get angry at things while women are more apt to get angry at people.

THIS ONE is told about a New York dress manufacturer who invited in 40 buyers to see his fall line. He ordered his assistant: "Go down to Lindy's Restaurant. Buy one sandwich, but make sure it's the most expensive one." The assistant asked, "How are you going to feed 40 buyers on one sandwich?" The manufacturer snapped, "Don't back talk me. Take it down to Irving's Delicatessen and get him to knock off 39 copies."

Catalytic converter

Antipollution device needs special care

DETROIT (UPI) — The catalytic converter is one device Detroit's automakers could have done without.

The muffler-like device that treats exhaust gases makes the 1975 models now rolling off assembly lines probably the most pollution-free automobiles ever produced with internal combustion engines.

Sometimes kicking, sometimes screaming and sometimes getting their way, Detroit's automakers have come up with the catalytic converter as their answer to the 1970 government order to take the car out of the pollution picture by 1975.

They not too affectionately refer to the device as the "Muskie Muffler" in reference to the U.S. senator from Maine who was most responsibile for the 1970 Clean Air Act.

Aside from the technical developments and the legal battles, the addition of the little chemical furnace beneath the floorboards of 1975 cars basically means to the American motorist:

—Higher prices since the catalytic muffler is adding between $100 and $150 to the price tags of the '75s.

—Better mileage since engineers for the past five years have been tuning engines to produce fewer pollutants can now tune for more get-up-and-go and mileage. General Motors is talking about a 14 per cent improvement over '74 models and Chrysler says it has a general 15 per cent gain.

—Mandatory use of unleaded gasoline since the lead additive that controls knocking also "poisons" the platinum and palladium catalyst. There's a new, smaller gas tank filler pipe on the '75s that will prevent anything but unleaded gasoline —at one or two cents more a gallon —from being put into the car.

Less evident to the motorist will be the exhaust coming out of the tailpipe containing 90 per cent fewer hydrocarbons than 1967 models, 83 per cent less carbon monoxide and 48 per cent fewer oxides of nitrogen. In California, where smog is a greater problem, the exhaust will be even cleaner.

GM, which was sharply critical of the government's timetable set in 1970, has since embraced the catalyst technology more than any of its competitors. But that didn't stop the world's largest auto company from going into court to fight the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and gain further delays.

In Congress, in the courts and in front of big and small groups, GM spokesmen told their side of the clean air controversy. They asked for delays in implementing a technology that no one really understands fully.

"Catalysts have an aura of alchemy about them, black magic, even with chemists," sayd Dr. Richard Klimisch, GM's first resident expert in catalysis. "The normal sequence of research and development is almost always turned around in catalytic technology.

"Somebody finds a catalyst maybe by a clumsy accident," he says. "Then we spend 20 years trying to find out why it works. I hesitate to say this, and I'll probably lose a lot of friends, but we don't really understand many catalysts."

The basic principle of the catalytic converter is that it speeds up the chemical reaction that converts unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide caused by incomplete combustion in the engine into harmless carbon dioxide and water.

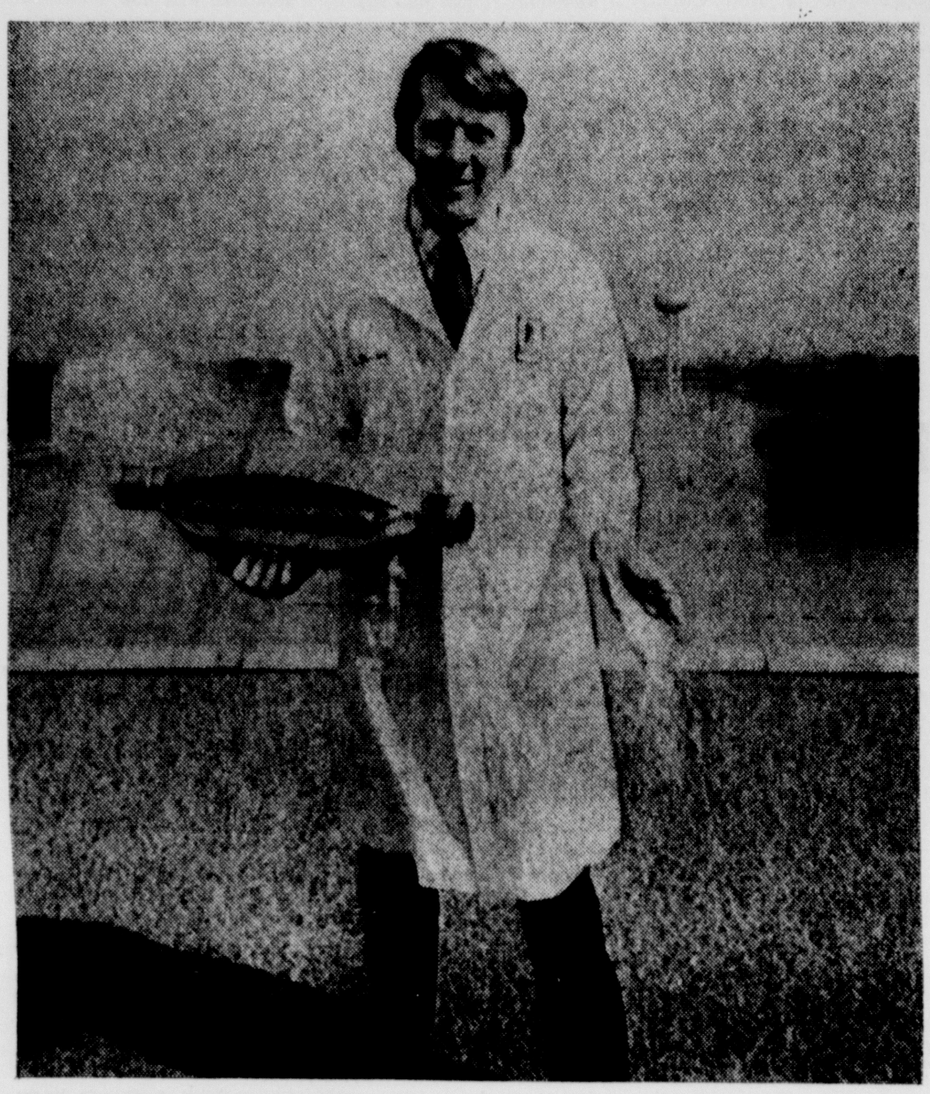
More important, it does this and emerges unchanged—able to repeat the process again. That's important since the catalyst is a combination of the relatively rare platinum and palladium that is available from only two places—the Soviet Union and South Africa.

To supply its need GM signed a deal with Impala Platinum Limited of South Africa for 300,000 ounces of platinum and 120,000 ounces of palladium a year. A lot of rock—10 to 15 tons—has to be mined to produce just one ounce of platinum and palladium.

The two noble metals are either coated on ⅛ inch beads for use in GM's system or on a honeycomb-like structure at Ford before being placed in a metal container.

The government says the catalytic converters should last 50,000 miles without deteriorating. However, if the leaded gasoline is somehow put into the gas tank, the catalysts will be "poisoned" since the lead coats the metal catalyst and doesn't allow it to come into contact with the harmful gases.

Next: Motorists Unbuckle Unwanted Safety Belts



CATALYTIC CONVERTER — Dr. Richard L. Klimisch, catalyst specialist at General Motors, spills a handful of platinum-palladium coated beads used in the new anti-smog device he holds in his right hand. The thousands of beads in each converter have more surface than the 26-acre pond behind Dr. Klimisch at Detroit.

Some people wondered if a volunteer Army would work. 300,000 young people believe it will.

There were times when we, like the rest of America, wondered if the Army would make it without a draft.

Could we meet our total manpower needs by relying solely on volunteers? And if so, could we meet those needs in quality as well as nu[illegible]? On June 30, 1974, we got the answer.

How the Army's doing without the draft.

For the period covering July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974 over 199,000 young men and women enlisted in the Army. Which meant that we not only reached, but exceeded our goal.

And since the last person was drafted, 300,000 young people have joined. As a result, the Army today is at full authorized strength and prepared to do its job.

Since we've been asking for volunteers, we've been getting better soldiers.

The figures are impressive. But not quite as impressive as the fact behind them. The people who are joining are joining because they want to, not because they have to. They're better motivated, better prepared to accept discipline, and, therefore, better soldiers.

They're joining because they're finding things in the Army they may not be able to find anywhere else.

They're finding three square meals isn't all we have to offer.

They're finding good jobs. If they qualify, they can even take their choice from over 200 job-training courses.

They're finding new people to meet and new worlds to experience. From Europe to Texas to Hawaii to Panama.

They're finding a chance to get a college education. On Army posts, as well as at nearby universities. And they're finding that the Army not only encourages them to further their education, but pays 75% of their tuition costs.

They're finding a place to gain self-confidence and maturity. From the ruggedness of Basic Training to the everyday discipline of Army life.

The most important thing we do for them is what they do for us.

And while they're finding that the Army is making them better individuals, we're finding they're making us a better Army.

Camp experience on the Black Sea

By BARRY JAMES

MOSCOW (UPI) — Chuck Whitehead, a 12-year-old from Greenbelt, Md., spent his summer vacation this year as few American children ever have.

While his friends traveled abroad with their families, Chuck joined thousands of Soviet children at a Black Sea camp for members of the Pioneers, the Soviet equivalent of boy scouts.

He learned to rumba, did a lot of marching and was exposed to some propaganda.

Pioneering is scouting with a heavy ideological content.

Like scouts, Pioneers are "vsegda gotov" (ever ready), but the inspiration for their movement is as much V.I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet state, as Robert Baden-Powell, founder of scouting. Their emblem is a badge of a flame with a portrait of Lenin superimposed.

"We drilled and drilled," Chuck said. "But you got used to it." He made it sound as though the dancing was worse.

"One day I was forced to dance with a girl," he said. "It was rotten." That was when he learned the rumba. He also taught his companions American songs, swam every day, and went for excursions.

He got a badge for exceeding his work norm, and went to a propaganda lecture where he learned capitalists want war and Communists want peace.

"The lecturer knew I was a capitalist and told my friend Tanya not to translate what he was saying," Chuck said.

Chuck was making his first trip away from home. He was the only American at the Black Sea camp. His father, John E. Whitehead, is assistant to the senior military attache at the American embassy in Moscow.

Discipline at the camp was strict. "If you didn't make your bed perfectly, you were zapped," Chuck said.

The food was plain but adequate. And during the enforced three-hour afternoon rest period, there was not much to do. Chuck said he borrowed the only English book in the camp's library, Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

The vigilance of camp commanders could not stop pranksterism. "We used to climb in the girls room and put toothpaste on their faces," Chuck said.

The month's stay cost Chuck's parents $250, which included the train trip, medical care and uniforms. Russians pay less.

The Soviet Union has more than 700 camps for Pioneers, the younger Octobrists and the older Komsomols. They range from tent settlements to permanent camps with brick-built dormitories and elaborate sports facilities.

One of the best is the Iskra (spark) camp near Moscow, which serves the children of employes of Gosplan, the state planning agency.

Here, 330 children spend 26 days in hostel-type dormitories equipped with television, swings, merry-go-rounds and fairground attractions.

A newsman who was allowed to visit the camp recently found dolls on top of 12 neatly made beds in the younger girls rooms, bugles and drums in some of the boys rooms.

The children ran a competition for neatness. Each section had its own red flag to carry on parades.

Books by or about Lenin prevailed in the camp library. A copy of the British Communist newspaper Morning Star was on one bedside table.

In the center of the camp was a Lenin monument which children were expected to salute. Nearby, a long fence held portraits of Soviet cosmonauts.

Camp director Marina Chichina proudly showed the large and well-equipped kitchen. She produced a menu which indicated the children had caviar for breakfast.

Asked if he ever had caviar for breakfast at his camp, Chuck Whitehead replied, "Huh?"

He said he got ice cream two or three times as a treat but that the pioneers were frisked for bread when they left the dining room.

Treated well, feels fine

Last Laos POW released

CLARK AIR FORCE BASE, Philippines (UPI) — Civilian pilot Emmett Kay, looking relaxed and healthy after his release from Communist captivity in Laos, said on arrival here Wednesday night he believes he was the last American prisoner of war in Laos.

EMMETT KAY

"As far as I know, I was the only American," Kay told newsmen on arrival at this huge U.S. Air Force base 60 miles north of Manila where American POWs were treated after their release from captivity in North Vietnam last year. U.S. officials have reported some 300 Americans still missing in Laos.

Kay, 47, was released earlier in the day in Vientiane, the Laotian captial, after 16 months in the hands of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao. He was flown to Vientiane from the Pathet Lao capital in Sam Neua aboard a British Embassy plane.

He was greeted there by his wife, Flora, who had been so excited she told reporters "I've got butterflies."

Kay said his captors had treated him "very well" but medical authorities said he had lost 20 pounds while in captivity.

He said he had been permitted recreation and specifically metioned volleyball and listening to the radio.

Asked if he made any friends among his captors, the tall, angular pilot from Hawaii said, "Oh, yes, I have a lot of friends there."

Asked if there had been any attempts to brainwash or discuss ideology with him, he replied "No, not at all."

Kay was captured on May 7, 1973, when his small commerical plane under charter to the U.S. government ran low on fuel and was forced to land in Communist territory in Laos.

Kay said on his release in Vientiane his plane had been hit by gunfire.

"I had engine trouble from the ground fire," Kay said.

"I am very happy to be back and I feel very fortunate that my wife could meet me," Kay said on arrival here.

His wife, in a blue pants suit, stepped off the U.S. Air Force C9 plane before Kay did and said, "He looks very well."

Kay was greeted on the tarmac by Maj. Gen. Leroy Manor, commanding general of the 13th Air Force stationed at Clark, and Paul Philips of the U.S. Embassy in Manila.

Manor, who has been active in U.S. Air Force efforts to recover POWS, speculated that if other Americans had been held in Sam Neua in Laos Kay "probably would have heard about them."

Manor was instrumental in planning the raid on Son Tay in North Vietnam in an unsuccessful attempt to recover POWS during the American involvement in the Vietnam war.

The Kays were accompanied on the plane by Maurice Brawlnik of the U.S. Embassy in Vientiane. Brawlnik said Kay had told officials that it was his impression that the Pathet Lao buried bodies of American pilots near the sites where their plane crashed.

While in captivity at the Pathet Lao headquarters at Sam Neua, Brawlnik said Kay was kept in a small bungalow by himself most of the time.

"They apparently took very good care of him," Brawlnik said.

He said Kay will undergo a thorough medical examination at Clark before he is flown to Honolulu. The Kay's children remained behind in Hawaii to attend school.

"You can assume he's coming back with any number of parasites," Brawlnik said.

His wife got out first, followed by Kay, in a patterned blue sportshirt. Kay waved at a small crowd as he was met by Manor, Phillips and a four-man Air Force honor guard wearing shiny helmets.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Manila said that Kay underwent preliminary medical tests aboard the C9 on the flight from Udorn air base in Thailand where Kay was flown from Vientiane to Clark.

The spokesman said initial findings on Kay showed there was no outward sign of illness. Kay had told reporters in vientiane "I feel very fine. I was treated very, very well."

PARLIAMENT DISSOLVES — Prime Minister Harold Wilson with his wife, Mary, waves from door of No. 10 Downing St., shortly after announcing dissolution of Parliament set for tomorrow. New elections are set for next month with Wilson hoping to obtain a clear Labor majority this time avoiding another coalition government.

Burglars take dog along for protection

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police jailed three men Tuesday who they said took along their own dog to protect them from a canine patrol while attempting a burglary.

Marlin Middleton, Canine Protection Patrol Service manager, had called officers when he noticed a fleeing man as he opened a gate at a demolition site to pick up a watchdog.

Responding policemen found the three hiding men in addition to two fighting dogs.

The dogs were separated and taken to a veterinarian who treated them for cuts and bruises.

Held for a burglary investigation were Leo Perez, 18; Jose Herrera Jr., 18; and Stephen Leon, 21.

Ready for winter

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Puerto Rico has more than 2,000 new hotel rooms under construction, with about half of them to be ready for use during the upcoming winter season, according to the director of the government Tourism Development Co., Roberto Bouret.

Cave diving

Unwary lured to death

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida's mysterious labrynth of underground waterways, the pitch-dark sanctum of blind catfish and see-through shrimp, is luring unwary divers to their deaths in growing numbers.

In the past three years there has been a sharp increase in the number of scuba divers who have drowned in this unique system of subterranean rivers, caves, springs and sinkholes.

"The last three yers have been pretty bad for us for some unknown reason," said David Desautels, who started keeping a death toll in 1960 and is often called on to help recover bodies from the treacherous caverns.

Desautels, 38, married, and a respiratory therapist at the Sands teaching hospital at the University of Florida, is executive director of the National Association for Cave diving.

During the 60s, Desautels said, cave diving fatalities averaged less than seven a year in Florida.

Then in 1972, 18 divers were lost, followed by another 15 in 1973.

So far this year, 19 have died, including two triple drownings such as last week's tragedy at Jenny Springs near Trenton where three young underwater explorers lost their lives at a depth of 65 feet, 400 feet back into a cave.

"Mostly it occurs from inexperience and lack of knowledge of what they're doing," said Desautels, who pulled the bodies of the South Carolinians out of Jenny Springs. "It's like just learning how to drive and then getting on the track at Daytona."

Desautels, who has been diving 15 years, cited the case of the South Carolinians.

"They went in with no safety line, one flashlight between the three of them, one watch between the three of them, one depth gauge and one pressure gauge," he said. "People don't understand that there is a vast difference between cave diving and regular scuba diving.

"We have people coming down here from up north in chartered buses, by the busloads, and jumping in these sinks. We try to emphasize to them that there is a vast difference between cave diving and regular scuba diving."

For one thing, more safety equipment is required. While an ocean diver may outfit himself for about $200, the proper attire for a cave diver may cost about $1,800, Desautels said.

That includes a wet suit, a weight belt, double tanks with a special conversion unit, an "octopus" breathing apparatus, an inflatable vest, a primary light equivalent to a 100 watt aircraft landing light, a backup light, and a safety line on a reel.

Desautels said the main difference between ocean or lake diving and cave diving is that if you run out of air in open water, you simply come straight up. But in a cave you have to find your way back out of a labyrinth, often through water clouded by silt stirred up by the divers.

He also noted that nitrogen narcosis —rapture of the deep —seems to effect divers more in caves than in open waters. And, he added, without proper safety lines to the surface, it's easy to become lost or disoriented in a cave and run out of air before you can find your way to the surface.

While it is pitch black inside one of these caves, the water is crystal clear unless the diver kicks up the silt on the bottom. With a light he can see many wondrous things, such as the catfish without eyes, the transparent shrimp, and perhaps the bones of some prehistoric mammal.

"I work during the week kind of intensively," Desautels said. "So I like to get out on the weekend. I forget everything around here and get totally absorbed in diving. I shut out the rest of the world."

Glenn Rocky

Camp changed to maximum security

An 18-month effort by La Verne and San Dimas to keep the county from turning Camp Glenn Rocky into a maximum security boys detention center was shot down Wednesday.

Los Angeles County Supervisors approved plans and specifications to beef up the camp in the foothills above San Dimas with a 14-foot concrete wall and a 7,500-square-foot building containing high security quarters and other facilities.

The project is expected to cost between $825,000 and $900,000.

Both communities have been fighting the move since April.

They contend that changing Glenn Rockey from a fire fighting training camp for boys to a maximum security compound where delinquent boys with runaway records are kept would adversely effect the area.

But county officials insist that the high concrete wall will keep the boys inside and will protect the communities better.

The project now calls for construction of the fence and dormitory with 20 separate bedrooms and restrooms as well as counseling and storage rooms. In addition, 10 new offices and a mechanical equipment room will be added to the existing headquarters building.

Construction is expected to take about a year.

Glenn Rocky is a detention center for boys between 16 and 18.

Weed eaters

Scientists trying to save manatees

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Cruising near Punta Roxa off the coast of Hispaniola in 1502, Christopher Columbus saw what he thought were mermaids. What he actually saw were manatees and science is now as interested in these curious mammals as was the great explorer himeslf.

For the manatee is pound for pound the reigning champion among the grazing animals, especially in his capacity to consume underwater weeds. An adult manatee, about 10 feet long and half a ton in weight, will chomp through more than 200 pounds of wet vegetation a day. No wonder it is often called the sea cow.

What intrigues science about the manatee at the moment, according to articles in The New Scientists and Oryx, the organ of the Fauna Preservation Society, is its voracious appetitte. What is worrying scientists at the same time is the voracious appetite native populations have for the delicious flesh (like veal and bacon) of this harmless beast.

There is, in fact, a sort of race going on between scientists seeking to save the manatee, and use it as one of the most efficient machines yet found for clearing rivers and lakes clogged with aquatic weeds, and the relentless hunting of the manatee for the dinner table in those areas where it still survives.

The New Scientist article, warning the manatee was fast becoming extinct, said scientists from 10 countries discussed what to do about it at a recent conference in Guyana which has been using manatees to keep the ornatmental fountains in its botanical gardens free of weeds since 1885.

It said Dr. W.H.L. Alsopp of Canada's International Development Center found two manatees could clear a canal 22 feet wide and 1,600 yards long in 17 weeks. There is plenty of this kind of work for the manatee to do if it can be saved. Some 600 miles of the Nile are clogged, large areas of Zaire have had to be abandoned because boats cannot travel the rivers and 1,000 miles of canals in India are idle because of weed blockage.

At the same time these weeds have caused serious health problems since the mosquitoes that carry malaria, filariasis and encephalitis breed in the vegetation along with the fresh water snail that is the cause of one of the most widespread and debilitating diseases in the tropics, schistosomiasis.

In West Africa, according to Oryx, the manatee is difficult to see and catch along with the hazards of the diseases above plus crocodiles, electric fish and the black fly that causes river blindness.

One of the handicaps to the plan to turn the manatee into a domestic animal—it poses no threat to humans, often nuzzles those divers who enter its habitat—is that so little is known of its reproductive cycles, its longevity, breeding habits or whether it is prolific enough to ensure a population of manatees of a practical size.

Black Navy retiree loves Philippines

By LEON DANIEL

TACLOBAN, the Philippines (UPI) — You might say that Percy Johnson, the only black American in this sweltering coastal town, has dropped out.

It probably would be closer to the truth to say that the former chief gunner's mate in the U.S. Navy has given his life a style that other men might envy.

When it comes to work, Johnson cheerfully acknowledges that he doesn't do any.

"I drink a little beer around the house," he said. "I read a lot of paperbacks, you know, Westerns, mysteries, historical novels, stuff like that."

When he gets tired of that, he saunters down to the fire station in this central Philippines town 400 miles southeast of Manila to chat with his good friends the Filipino firemen.

Johnson, 48, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, retired two yers ago after 26 years in the Navy, mostly at sea, and likes what he sees in the world around him these days.

"These are wonderful people," he said. "This is a wonderful country."

Johnson doesn't knock the martial law government imposed 23 months ago by President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

"I'm the only black American here," he says. "I wouldn't think of doing or saying anything that would be embarrassing to this government or to my own country."

Anyway, he approves of martial law.

"Sure, there's malnutrition in the Philippines," he said. "But the government's doing something about it. I don't care where you're living, there's always going to be some problems."

Johnson, who at well over six feet towers over just about every Filipino on the historic island of Leyte, said he has no problems here because of his race.

"The Filipinos are dark themselves," he said. "Wherever I go here I get full courtesy. Wherever I am in the Philippines, I'm treated as an American."

It is good to be an American on Yeyte because the people favorably remember the victorious return to the island during World War II of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

A marker a few miles down the beach from Tacloban recounts how MacArthur fulfilled his promise to the Filipino people that "I shall return."

Johnson, who examines the tattoos on his arms to check when and what ships he sailed on, admits he misses the sea "all the time." But he steers clear of the crewmen of the Russian ships that occasionally tie up at Tacloban to take on cargoes of copra.

"I don't have nothing to say to those dudes," says Johnson, who gets a little news on his radio but is not much moved by such vents as the Soviet-American detente.

And there is, he says, a lot of calm blue water between him and Watergate.

Israel fears new outbreak of war

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Israel fears that a new Middle East war could break out as early as next month unless new progress toward a political settlement is made.

That was one of the messages conveyed by Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in his conferences with President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

That Kissinger also may fear a loss of momentum toward peace may be concluded from his request that Rabin advance his scheduled visit to Washington to the present instead of making it in October or November as originally planned.

Kissinger himself plans another visit to the Mideast soon, possibly in October.

Israeli leaders base their belief that the test of Arab intentions could come next month on the fact that it is in October and November that the mandates for the United Nations peace-keeping forces in the Sinai and Golan Heights expire.

The Syrians have been hinting they may not renew the U.N. mandate in the Heights and therefore force the peace-keeping troops to leave.

"The question is the survival or non-survival of the separation of forces agreements," Yosef Tekoah, Israel's ambassador to the United Nations told newsmen recently. "If the U.N. troops go at either Egypt's or Syria's request, the agreements will collapse, with all the attendant implications."

Convinced that the next round of fighting will be more lethal than the October, 1973, war, Israel's leaders have not only bolstered their arsenal with new American-made weapons, they have begun a series of crash programs to improve the military's battle readiness.

These include the testing of new reserve mobilization procedures, full-scale war games in the Sinai, and a top-to-bottom review of manpower requirements designed to increase the size of Israel's standing army, now estimated by foreign sources to be about 100,000 men.

The Israelis are not the only ones who see disastrous consequences unless new progress toward a negotiated settlement can be shown soon.

Other analysts believe that both President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and President Hafez Assad of Syria would prefer a peaceful Mideast settlement.

But they see Assad especially as under pressure from radical elements that believe another round of fighting could be advantageous to Syria.

These analysts also believe it is possible the Soviet Union might see renewed fighting as a way of preventing a further spread of United States influence in the Middle East.

Israeli sources report that since the 1973 war the Soviets have replenished Syria's warmaking potential with the latest in Soviet Mig jet fighter-bombers, surface-to-air missiles and rockets capable of reaching Israeli targets from well inside Syria.

They also believe the Syrians are being helped by pilots and technicians from North Korea, North Vietnam and Cuba, as well as by Soviets.

The Syrian extremists, who also have the support of Iraq, are said to believe that in the event of renewed fighting along the Golan Heights, both Egypt and Jordan would be obliged to join in.

Arabs satisfied Ford will push for peace

BEIRUT (UPI) — Treading a cautious path through the minefield of Middle East politics, President Ford has satisfied most Arab doubters during his first month in office that he will push ahead with American peace initiatives.

In Cairo, where the shock waves of Richard Nixon's resignation caused newspapers to include black borders of mourning in their first editions, officials now said they were reassured U.S. Middle East policies had not changed.

They based their assessment of Ford's spoken and written promises during Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi's visit to Washington in mid-August and on the pace and earnestness of the administration's current round of talks with other Middle East leaders.

Fahmi led an influx of Arab leaders to the U.S. capital. They included King Hussein of Jordan, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam and Saudi Arabia's Minister of Foreign Affairs Omar Saqqaf.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon has also been there. Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, originally scheduled to visit Washington in October or November, will now make the trip early this month.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced the change in dates, which Egyptian officials considered a sign of a "little arm-twisting" by Washington. Egypt regarded the move as an effort to complete consultations between the United States and Middle East leaders as quickly as possible to enable Kissinger to launch a new initiative in October.

Kissinger's announcement took the Israelis by surprise and touched off complaints of "American pressure" in the Israeli parliament and press.

The visits by Fahmi and Hussein brought further satisfaction to Cairo and Amman on Ford's attitude to Middle East problems.

A joint communique, issued at the end of the Fahmi visit, not only called for a speedy but also contained American agreement that the conference discuss Palestinian participation, Egyptian officials said.

The Egyptians said this was the first U.S. public commitment to consideration of Palestinian participation at Geneva, which Israel strongly opposes.

At the end of the Hussein visit, the United States gave its partial backing to a Jordanian proposal that Israel and Jordan should immediately consider a troop disengagement agreement on Israel's eastern frontier— another move hitherto opposed by Israeli leaders.

Israeli foreign minister Allon immediately sought further details from Washington and said afterwards he received "direct, important and satisfying clarifications."

Israeli officials have so far played down any differences with the Ford administration. Allon said opposition criticism over the way Kissinger announced Rabin's visit to Washington was "noisy and greatly exagerated."

Kissinger's role will be as important now as it has been in the past eight months of intricate Middle East negotiations, both Arab and Israeli officials said.

His retention as secretary of state was particularly welcomed in Egypt where President Anwar Sadat has noted that Kissinger is "a man of his word" and "we trust him."

In Israel, however, Allon noted that 'it would be superfluous to mention that Dr. Kissinger is still the American, and not the Israeli, foreign minister and that he represents American aspirations and interests as they appear to him, not our interests."

Commisaries for senior citizens?

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Complaints falling on official Washington from around the country these days increasingly center on one topic — the way food prices are dashing 10 paces ahead of everyone's pocketbook.

A letter we recently received from Stark City, Mo., reflects that frustration and offers a somewhat novel suggestion:

"I read quite often that the consumer is going to have to be convinced that meat isn't going to get any cheaper, that we are going to have to pay high prices. I would like to convince them that the reason we don't buy it now is that we don't have the money.

"I would like to suggest commissaries for the elderly where they could get meat, potatoes and beans cheaper. Maybe it could be arranged to go direct from the farmer to the commissary, thereby giving the farmer a larger profit.

"I am 66 years old, retired and on a pension, so I know what I am talking about..."

That's an intriguing idea, although we imagine some already are thinking it's too simple —that things don't work that easily. It's true our marketing system is based not just on one middleman but on a whole series of them, each contributing to the price of groceries, some by design but others by merely being part of the chain.

When you start thinking about federal subsidies, the money and machinery involved make the idea less appealing.

Still, if some sort of commissary arrangement could be worked out on a county or local basis, it would serve both an economic and a social need —the latter being everyone's desire to live on his income without having to resort to food stamps or eat federally subsidized meals at community centers.

This is not to denigrate those two programs which, incidentally, may be overlooked by those in need. Older persons on fixed incomes may be eligible for food stamps. Check with your local welfare office to find out. The meals for the elderly program, operated by community groups with federal funding, now turns out 206,000 meals a day, five days a week, mostly on a commercial basis but sometimes at home for shutins.

Consumers Union is warning buyers to be wary of beef in bulk at firms that offer the meat and the freezer space to keep it. The organization, which publishes "Consumer Reports" magazine, says a survey it made in Pennsylvania showed that buying beef in bulk can cost as much as 12 cents a pound more than the same meat purchased at the supermarket.

The difference often is accounted for by the waste in trimming bulk beef.

The organization also advises that some companies still are using "bait and switch" tactics —advertising one price but then trying to talk the customer into a more expensive deal.

Japan-South Korea hassle could give President 1st Asian crisis

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan and South Korea are on the brink of a brawl that could endanger the American military position in the Orient and give President Ford his first Asian crisis.

South Korean President Park Chung-hee is out to force the Japanese government to stifle criticism of him among the 630,000 Koreans living as a minority people in Japan.

Park's government has put its prestige on the line —and possibly painted itself into a corner —by making demands that Japanese political leaders are saying privately Japan cannot meet.

On Sept. 6, demonstrators in Seoul sacked the lower floors of the Japanese embassy and tore down a Japanese flag. There have been mass demonstrations daily since then.

It is a dilemma for the U.S. government. Korea and Japan are American allies. Since the Korean war of 1950-53 the United States has been committed to defend South Korea from the Communist northern half of the country. It has 40,000 troops stationed in the South.

Japan, then under American occupation, was America's "safe rear area" in the Korean war. Even today, any American defense of South Korea would be difficult without Japanese cooperation.

It is not just an ordinary row between two countries. Like Northern Ireland's Catholics and Protestants and the Turks and Greeks on Cyprus, the Japanese and Koreans have emotional hangups about each other.

Mostly they stem from Japan's 35-year colonial rule of Korea from 1910-1945.

The present deterioration in relations between Seoul and Tokyo has been going on for a little more than a year, and was sparked by two emotional incidents.

In August, 1973, former South Korean presidential candidate Kim Dae-jung was kidnaped from a Tokyo hotel and spirited to South Korea.

Park's government denied responsibility, but Japanese police said fingerprints of a member of the Korean Embassy staff in Tokyo were found at the scene of the kidnaping.

He has been under virtual house arrest since his return to Korea and the Park government refuses to let him go abroad. South Korean officials recently told Japan that their investigation of the unsolved crime was at an end.

On Aug. 15 of this year, an assassin opened fire on Park at a public meeting in Seoul. Park was not injured, but his wife was shot to death.

Police seized the gunman, who was identified as Moon Sekwang, 23, a Korean national from Osaka, Japan.

South Korean authorities say Moon has made a confession, implicating members of a pro-North Korean association in Tokyo that speaks for about half of the Koreans living in Japan.

South Korea last week formally demanded that Japan suppress the pro-North Korean group and this week reportedly told Japanese diplomats in Seoul that Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka must send a personal letter promising to suppress the group.

Japanese political sources say suppression of the Chosen Soren organization would be illegal under Japan's present civil liberhies laws.

The sources say Tanaka will go no farther than reiterating that Japan regrets Mrs. Park's death, and will continue to investigate the Japanese aspect of it.

U.S. diplomats have been working behind the scenes in Washington and Seoul trying to help the two sides find a solution.

Hamburger not good ration for wild owl

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: We are trying to nurse Barney, a wild owl, back to health so we can turn him loose. He got beat up by some crows we think. He can't eat mice, but he has learned to like hamburger and eats it a lot easier. Besides, we would rather feed it to him. Poor little mice! Hamburger O.K. I hope?—R.B.

Dear R.B.: It will do in a pinch on a shrot-term basis but a burger is no substitute for small, whole animals. It's a completely unbalanced ration, too high in fat, much too low in calcium, missing many of the trace elements and other factors and, lastly, it does not provide required roughage. It's back to nature food for Barney if you expect him to make it back himself.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Where's the best place to get a problem-free puppy? Does that sound naive? I know any puppy will provide us with problems. What I really mean is, one who doesn't have some goofy behavior problem. We got two dogs, both were under a year of age both were real nuts — so much so that we couldn't keep them. We're willing to try again but how can we improve our chances for a normal dog? — D.S.

Dear D.S.: Best bet is for you to be the one to cut mama's apron strings. Get that puppy when it's at six to eight weeks of age, in the prime formative, impressionable period. Be sure it's healthy (have it checked out by the doctor to verify this) and get it started right nutritionally. During that richly formative period, his heredity will play a part in how and what he learns. To a surprisingly large degree, however, the dog he becomes will depend on how you measure up as friend, teacher and leader.

KEEP PETS HOME — Many young owners and their pets have spent the summer together, and don't want to separate now that school's here. Planning, to prevent tragedy, is important. Allowing a kitten or even a puppy, to follow its master to a bus stop or further is to invite tragedy when the young pet dashes into the street. Be sure those companions remain at home, and are kept there. Otherwise, hours or even days later they're likely to wander off looking for their lost playmates.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We've had Boo Boo Beagle three months and she's a little doll, but is terribly clumsy and uncoordinated. The dumb-dumb who had her before I got her didn't take care of her ear mites and she got a middle ear infection and almost died. Her ears were healed when I got her, but when she gets excited she has a hard time walking or eating. She's still only a year old. Boo Boo enjoys life and certainly I'm going to keep her, forever, but what are her chances for recovering and growing out of this? — M.B.

Dear M.B.: Boo Boo can never "grow out of" this condition though she may still improve. Her doctor may have some suggestions related to nutrition or other supportive measures to maximize her chances for improvement. At this point, however, most of her improvement is likely to occur as undamaged tissue in the nervous system takes over some of the functions of cells destroyed by the infection. If such progress is made, it would necessarily be quite small.

Ask Dr. Brothers

A common response

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: About four months ago, my father died and my mother has been in deep mourning ever since. I know a certain period of mourning is necessary but I'm concerned about her reaction to her loss. Before my father died, my mother was in very good mental and physical health but since his death she has been forgetful and seems to be entering a period of senility. Maybe we should have expected this anyway as she's nearing 70, but this is in such sharp contrast to the way she used to be.

My husband and I had planned to take a two-week vacation and leave our two young children with her. She says she still wants to have them but my husband feels this will put an additional strain on her and it might not be good for the children. He thinks it would be better for them to be with younger people and he wants to leave them with his brother and his wife. The thing is that the kids want to go to Mother and they'd be quite disappointed with any change in plans. —B.G.

Dear B.G.: Depression is a common response to the severe stress under which your mother has been living since your father's death. Death reminds us of our own mortality but it is particularly stressful to the aged, for it reminds them that even under the best of circumstances their time on earth is limited.

Often, when elderly people become depressed they tend to withdraw into themselves. This may make them appear to be more forgetful than they actually are. Your mother probably feels she no longer has any function or purpose in life and having the children with her might well restore her sense of self-esteem.

Unless she has some physical problem, I suggest you give further consideration to your original plan. It would be excellent therapy for her and it would probably also be good for the children. Don't hestiate to dicuss this with your mother. Let her know that you have great faith in her, but give her an out in case she might prefer not to have the children. Don't project your fears about her not being capable of caring for them as this will only increase any anxiety she may feel. Let her know that the children would prefer to be with her and that you would prefer them to be there, if possible. My guess is that this would be the best course for the children, for you and your husband and for your mother.

The old and the young have much to share with each other—each learns and profits from this companionship. Your husband is wrong in his feeling that the young should be with the young. Most children much prefer to be with grandparents, for they sense the security and love they need when their own parents are away.

Children get a sense of continuity from grandparents—a feeling that is valuable and comforting.

La Verne man wed in Georgia service

MRS. TIMOTHY WARFEL

Wedding vows were exchanged in an afternoon ceremony at the Poplar Arbor Congregational Church of Doerun, Ga., by Miss Merry Lynne Moss and Timothy Joseph Warfel.

Officiating at the double ring rites was the Rev. Martin P. O'Loghlen. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Charles Moss of Doerun, Ga. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Warfel of La Verne.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Moss carried a cascade bouquet of lily of the valley, stephanotis, gypsophila and phalaenopsis orchids. Her bridal gown was a floor-length dress of ivory satin organza fashioned with an empire bodice and long sleeves appliqued with lace. Matching lace accented the front of the skirt and Cluny lace edged the hemline. A bonnet headpiece of lace held a chapel length veil edged in lace.

Merry Melissa Maxcy was the maid of honor and Mrs. Randall R. Benner was hhe matron of honor. Miss Barbara Wood and Mrs. Richard Daniel Page were bridesmaids.

Mitchell McLeod was the ring bearer.

Mark Jerome Warfel stood as best man for his brother. Serving as ushers were Lawrence Kurt Nodine, Steven Harding Moss and Richard Lee Moss, both brothers of the bride.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents, Moss Farms, followed the wedding ceremony.

After a honeymoon in Montreal, Canada, the couple is at home in Cambridge, Mass., where the groom is attending Harvard University Law School.

Executives' Secretaries plan dinner

"Astro-Logic" will be the feature of the evening when the Executives' Secretaries, Inc., Pomona Chapter, meet Sept. 26 at the Magic Lamp Inn, Cucamonga. Speaker will be Mrs. Judith Langston.

A social hour at 6:30 p.m. will precede the dinner at 7:30 p.m. Members and guests from Riverside, San Bernardino and surrounding areas will be guests.

Mrs. Marjorie Zuver, philanthropy and scholarship chairman of ESI, has announced that Riverside City Library will be the recipient of its annual library donation. The library has indicated the money will be used to purchase additonal recordings of a series of instructions and studies in the business field.

DARLENE WESTPHAL

Westphal and Long rites set

An October wedding is planned by Miss Darlene Diane Westphal of Anaheim and Joe C. Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Long of Pomona.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam W. Westphal of Chicago. She is a graduate of St. Mary's Community of Nazareth Hospital Nursing School and will be employed in the intensive care division of a Santa Barbara Hospital after her marriage.

Mr. Long graduated from high school in Chicago and attended Mt. San Antonio College and will now transfer to Brooks Institute of Photographic Art and Science in Santa Barbara where he will complete work for a B. A. degree in industrial photography. He has served in the Army.

Chapel rites unite area couple

The Chapel of the Bells in Ontario was the setting for the marriage of Miss Yana Sue Hill, daughter of Mrs. Setsuko Hill, Pomona, to Richard Aragon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Aragon Jr., Pomona.

The Rev. Byron Mayfield read the double-ring ceremony.

The bride wore an a-line gown of organza fashioned with an attached chapel train trimmed with re-embroidered silk daisies. The re-embroidery was repeated on the bodice and cap sleeves. A crown of pearls and aurora borealis beads held her three-tiered illusion veil. She carried yellow daisies with baby's breath. The bride was given in marriage by Ray Case.

Miss Linda Hill was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Pam Evans, Priscilla Aragon, Sally Diaz, Betty Aragon and Mrs. Cheryle Cordova. Marney Sager was the flower girl and ring bearer was Mark Serna.

Bill Evans was best man and ushers were Fred Robles, Larry Cordova, Mike Aragon, John Roybal and Kris Burton.

Following a reception and dance at the Chino American Legion club in Chino the couple left on a honeymoon at Mission Bay. They will reside in Pomona.

Ripe fruit

Oranges tinged with green are ripe fruit that remained on the tree during warm weather. Chlorophyll is the greening substance that tints the skin. Oranges are always picked when fully ripe.

Couple repeats vows in San Clemente rites

St. Andrew's by the Sea United Methodist Church in San Clemente was the setting for the afternoon wedding ceremony of Miss Marilu Oberg of Costa Mesa and David Alan Jerrold-Jones of Dana Point.

The Rev. Don Bassett and the Rev. Edward Fowler officiated at the double ring rites uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Oberg of Costa Mesa and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jerrold-Jones of Claremont.

The former Miss Oberg wore a gown of lace with a sheer neckline and long sleeves inset with lace. Her train-length veil was edged in lace and attached to a lace cap. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white and yellow daisies and was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Holly Abbott served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Dudding, sister of the bride, Miss Liz Hanson and Miss Jill Portland.

Michael McKinney served as the groom's best man. Ushers were Jeffrey Wilson, Robert Williams and Gary Madsen.

After a reception at the San Clemente Inn the newlyweds left for a honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold-Jones will make their home in San Juan Capistrano.

San Dimas women hear music program

A music program was presented by The Bonaparte Sisters at the luncheon meeting of San Dimas Woman's Club today at San Dimas Community Building.

Their unique blend and style of performing delighted their audience. The group has been bringing music to schools, hospitals, prisons and churches. The girls accompany themselves on guitar, piano, violin, flute, harmonica and tambourine.

Among the guests at the luncheon was Allison Apple, Order of Merit award winner and 1974 graduate of San Dimas High School.

Mrs. Kurt W. Thies introduced the officers. Cohostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Carlton Duvall and Mrs. Margaret Y. Parker.

Sawdusters meet Saturday

A Back to School dance is planned by the Sawdusters Square Dance Club Saturday at Yorba School, 250 W. La Verne Ave., Pomona.

Dancing will be from 8 to 11 p.m. with Howard McCreery calling. All square dancers are invited.

WIC group announces new slate of officers

New officers for the Pomona Valley Chapter, National Association of Women in Construction, were installed in ceremonies at Holiday Inn, Ontario.

Conducting the installation was Mrs. Nina Tate, NAWIC director-elect, Region 12.

Heading the slate of officers as president is Mrs. Ruth Vinatieri of Vinatieri Plumbing, Montclair.

Other officers are: Mmes. Joanne Hobo, vice president, William E. Myers Co., Claremont; Anne Thornburg, recording secretary; Concrete Tie Co., Compton; Betty Geaung, treasurer, K & M Floors, Upland; Key Campbell, Thora Sosinsky, Berna Jochem, Deloris Whelchel, directors.

The chapter meets every fourth Thursday and women who are actively employed in the construction industry are invited to attend meetings. Goal of the association is to educate its members to be better employes through educational programs.

Interested women may contact Mrs. Vinatieri at 982-1571 or 629-1306.

Cooperative education spreads

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — At Ohio State University recently, President Ford called for some changes in higher education.

Adding his voice to growing criticism of programs that prepare students for careers and-or jobs that do not exist, the President urged the academic world to mix a little better with the practical.

Cooperative education is one plan that blends hands on experience during the school years — "the practical" —with academics. And students are paid during the getting of the "practical" experience.

Among those cheering President Ford's challenge to the nation's colleges and universities is Stewart B. Collins of Philadelphia, Pa.

Collins is director of cooperative education at Drexel University and executive secretary of the Cooperative Education Association.

"The cooperative education movement is advancing at such a pace that it is hard to keep count," Collins said in a telephone interview.

"Some 370 schools were into it three years ago and now there are around 600. If President Ford puts his approval on the movement, it will grow faster."

Simply put, cooperative education combines a quality academic curriculum with the excitement and rewards of on-the-job experience — for which the students are paid.

The University of Cincinnati started the movement at college level in 1906. Northeastern University in Boston began a cooperative program in 1909. Between then and 1919, Drexel University in Philadelphia, the University of Detroit in Michigan, the University of Akron in Ohio and Georgia Tech in Atlanta joined the movement.

The Drexel Plan is a requirement of most of the undergraduate programs.

It is a five-year program at the college of engineering, at the college of science, at the college of business and administration.

Collins said Drexel operates one of the largest cooperative education programs in the nation, with students alternating periods of study at the University with periods of employment in business, industry, government and the professions.

Students spend from 11 to 12 quarters (a quarter is a three-month period) in college, and three to seven quarters in cooperative training during their four or five years at Drexel.

In each of the sophomore and junior years, for example, students spend six months at college and six months in a job.

Collins said the average pay is $125 a week and the range of weekly pay is from $80 to $200 a week, depending on the student's area of specialization and the degree of his skill.

There are more than 1,000 employers involved in the Drexel program, including some outside the country. For example, at this moment and until January, Drexel juniors Cheryl Hall and Louisa Hanshew are in Florence, Italy, working with famous designer Emilio Pucci. It is a cooperative education assignment that began last June.

Both girls are majoring in retail management.

Within a one-year period, Drexel placed more than 3,300 students with 1,250 employers in 29 states and seven foreign countries.

The cooperative education plan also means education may be financed on a pay-as-you-go basis. Almost half of the total tuition costs were paid out of earnings from employment through the cooperative plan. This past year, Drexel students earned a total of $8.5 million.

Another attractive feature of the cooperative education plan: more than 50 per cent of the students return to their employers in the Drexel Plan for fulltime employment after graduation.

Most of Drexel's students commute and the annual tuition ranges from $2,300 to $2,700. Room and board, for those requiring same, pay around $450 a term.

Opening lead—J♦

When they get around to playing the dummy, they aren't likely to come up with complicated squeezes and end plays. But when it comes to standard, basic good play they are right there.

We watched one of them play today's hand. She took the first diamond and saw that it was up to her to go after hearts. At least we assume that it what she saw, because she called for dummy's deuce of hearts.

Her eight lost to West's queen and a second diamond was led. She won in dummy, cashed the last good diamond since she needed that trick and called for dummy's 10 of hearts.

It didn't matter whether East covered or ducked. Actually East ducked. South let the 10 ride; played a third heart; and made the three heart tricks she needed.

Note that if South had called for the 10 of hearts at trick two and East had ducked South would only have been able to take two heart tricks.

DOLLS TELL THE STORY — The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith is using its booth in Building 7 of the Los Angeles County Fair to illustrate the workings of democracy. Explaining the project to Mike Stephens, 14, of Upland, left, and to Susan Elhai, 19, of Claremont, is Mrs. Elsie Bornstein, chairman of B'nai B'rith Women, District 4, and a co-chairman of the ADL booth display.

Dolls provide info on human relations

A "Dolls for Democracy" collection showing great men and women in action, is on display at the Los Angeles County Fair by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and several other Jewish organizations.

More than a dozen dolls, miniatures of historical figures, are used to provide visitors with current information on human relations, according to Mrs. Elsie Bornstein, chairman of the exhibit.

The booth is located in the commercial section, Building 7. This year's theme is "ADL Serves All People." The organization is now observing its 61st birthday, continuing a long tradition of protecting minority rights.

Working on the exhibit, in addition to Mrs. Bornstein, are Arthur Bernard, Sheila Norton, Martin Krentzman, Harry Schonfeld, Irwin Weinberg, Shirley Markson, Bill Elhai, Bob Seltzer and Carolyn and Mike Feldman.

Recreation class schedule announced

The Montclair Recreation Department will open its winter-spring program Oct. 7.

Brochures will be distributed to elementary school children and may be obtained at the City Hall, 5111 Benito Ave.

The following activities will be offered by the department:

Mini-school — classes for 4- and 5-year-olds conducted from 9 a.m. to noon on Mondays and Wednesdays or Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Archery—a Saturday program for adults conducted at Monte Vista School.

Basketball at the north gym at Montclair High School.

Belly-dancing for women, ages 12 and over.

Bicycle club—trips of 20 to 25 miles.

Cake decorating.

Fencing.

Folk dance—a course of instruction for adults instructed by Harve Edwards and his wife.

Guitar—instruction in folk guitar conducted by Kay Prout for a fee of $4. Beginning students will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. Classes for children will be held on Satudays.

Knitting and crocheting: for people 13 and older. Instructed by Bevery McFarland, beginning Oct. 9.

Macrame.

Shuffleboard.

Starlite Symphonette—adult musicans may audition to belong to a chamber orchestra which practices Wednesdays from 7:30 to 10 p.m. beginning Oct. 9.

Tap dancing.

Volleyball.

Yoga—a fee of $4 for a 10-week session. Participants are asked to bring a blanket.

Check-a-child—for children 3 and older. A fee of 50 cents per hour will be charged.

Winter concerts—free admission to programs at Montclair High School on Nov. 7, Jan. 30, March 20, April 24 and June 5.

Hospital to give childbirth class

The classes, conducted by Phyllis Baer, will consist of eight two-hour sessions.

For further information interested persons are asked to call the Inter-Community Hospital, 331-7331, Ext. 538.

On short term discount bonds

By Roger Spear and David Sargent

Q — Would you suggest several bonds rated A or better, maturing in five years or less, which yield 9 per cent or more? — A.S.

A — Certainly. Here are four A-rated, NYSE-listed issues which meet you criteria: Abex 8¾s of 1977, Appalachian Power 9s of 1975, Avco Financial 8⅞s of 1977, and Southern Natural Gas 9⅛s of 1976. All four issues are selling below par to yield 9.1 per cent to 9.6 per cent currently. Interest and fixed charges are covered adequately, within the perimeters of the various industries. Your yield to maturity or total return per invested dollar wil be from 10 per cent up to 13 per cent.

Q — What is your opinion of Citicorp's $5,000, 15-year notes? How safe are they? — JS.

A—After considerable opposition from the Savings & Loan and Savvings Bank industries, these controversial floating rate notes were finally marketed July 24. Citicorp's original $250 million offering was raised to $850 million, but later modified to $650 million and made non-refundable before June 1, 1976, as a concession to an industry plagued by worries of disintermediation. Since disintermediateion — the withdrawal of savings deposits to other forms of investments offering more attractive returns — reduces monies available for mortgages, this is no minor concern to the government.

In the meantime, Chase Manhattan has readied a $200 million similar issue and Crocker National is planning to market $75 million in 20-year floating rate notes. Should other banks rush into the market with similar offers, a drain of possibly $4 billion could be imposed on thrift institutions.

With mortgage money already tight, this new form of debt offering could diminsh the possibility of significant recovery for the housing industry.

As far as the safety of these instruments is concerned, you should bear in mind they are unsecured obligations of the issuing banks and do not carry FDIC or FSLIC insurance. Thus the reputation and standing of the issuing bank is of prime importance in determining the safety of these notes.

Chicago to play in Los Angeles

The pop group Chicago will perform in the Forum at Inglewood at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The concerts are the only Southern California appearance of the group this year.

The Columbia Records band, which now makes Los Angeles its home, is winding up an extensive concert tour. Almost all of the appearances have sold out in advance.

The group present music from its current "Chicago VII" album, plus some of the tunes it has made popular over the past few years.

The group's "Meanwhile, Back at the Ranch" TV special a few weeks ago, was a hit, and Billboard magazine now lists all its seven albums on the charts. Each of the previous LPs has been a gold record.

Hall of Fame

The first of the season's Hallmark Hall of Fame specials on NBC-TV will be Noel Coward's "Brief Encounter," set for Nov. 12.

This will be followed Nov. 29 by "The Gathering Storm," a dramatization of the first volume of Winston Churchill's memoirs, with Richard Burton providing the prime minister's voice.

Rock revival scheduled

"The King of the Twist," Chubby Checker, will headline a cast of rock 'n' roll stars in a Nostalgia Rock Revival at Magic Mountain, Valencia, Saturday and Sunday.

Checker will perform in the Showcase Theater at 7 and 9 both nights. Afternoon and evening shows at the amusement park will be offered by the Coasters, the Olympics, Cleve Duncan and the Penguins, Bobby Freeman, the Larks, the Fabulous Omens and other rock stars and groups.

Australian singer has 4 nominations

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Australia born Olivia Newton-John tied with veteran entertainer Charlie Rich for the most nominations in this year's Country Music Association awards.

Both entertainers received nominations in four categories. And, both are up for the prestigious "entertainer of the year" title.

Additionally, songs performed by both have been nominated as "Song of the Year." The tunes are "If You Love Me (Let Mé Know)," written by John Rostill, and "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," by Norro Wilson and Billy Sherrill.

Last year Rich was the top winner taking three of the awards in the nationally televised ceremonies.

Winners in each of 10 categories, as well as additions to the Country Music Hall of Fame, will be announced Oct. 14 in a live television broadcast from the new Opry House (over CBS).

The entire list of finalists follows:

Entertainer of the year —Roy Clark, Mac Davis, Loretta Lynn, Olivia Newton-John, Charlie Rich.

Single of the Year—"As Soon as I Hang Up the Phone," Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty, MCA; "Country Bumpkin," Cal Smith, MCA; "If You Love Me (Let Me Know)," Olivia Newton-John, MCA; "The Most Beautiful Girl in the World," Charlie Rich, Epic; "The Streak," Ray Stevens, Barnaby.

Album of the year—"Country Bumpkin," Cal Smith, MCA; "If We Make It Through December," Merle Haggard, Capitol; "If You Love Me (Let Me Know)," Olivia Newton-John, MCA; "A Very Special Love Song," Charlie Rich, Epic; "You've Never Been This Far Before," Conway Twitty, MCA.

Song of the Year—"Country Bumpkin," Don Wayne; "If We Make it Through December," Merle Haggard; "If You Love Me (Let Me Know)," Norro Wilson and Billy Sherrill; "The Streak," Ray Stevens.

Female vocalist of the year— Loretta Lynn, Anne Murray, Olivia Newton-John, Dolly Parton, Tanya Tucker.

Male vocalist of the year— Merle Haggard, Waylon Jennings, Ronnie Milsap, Charlie Rich, Cal Smith.

Vocal group of the year— Brush Arbor, The Buckaroos, The Jordaniers, The Osborne Brothers, The Stalter Brothers.

Instrumentalist of the Year— Chet Atkins, Roy Clark, Lloyd Green, Charlie McCoy, Don Rich.

SAN DIEGO DANCERS — Jillana, former principal ballerina with the New York Ballet Company, partnered here by Thor Sutowski, will star in performances by the San Diego Ballet Company at the Inner City Cultural Center, Los Angeles, Friday and Saturday. A new musical, "Cyrano de Bergerac, Man!" is scheduled to open at the center Sept. 28.

LOOSE BALL

Safety Jim Bright of the Sun and Terry Hoeppner of the Detroit Wheels can't seem to find the football getting away from them. Sun rallied to down the Wheels, 29-24, Wednesday night .

Sun true cardiac kids

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The cardiac kids of professional football did it again although only 22,143 witnessed it.

Trailing 24-22 with 1:47 left in the game, the California Sun went 63 yards in three plays Wednesday night at Anaheim Stadium to stun the Detroit Wheels 29-24.

Backup quarterback Gary Valbuena passed 21 and 16 yards to Dave Parks and 26 yards to Dick Witcher.

Witcher was in his first play from scrimmage in the WFL.

"It would have to rank as one of the highlights of my life," grinned Witcher. "If it had been in a 28-0 game, it wouldn't have meant much. But to get in for one play and score the winning points is fantastic."

Witcher was signed as a future while with the NFL San Francisco 49ers. The 49ers sent the former UCLA star and John Isenbarger, another WFL signee, to the Chicago Bears. Both were soon released by the Bears.

"We didn't even scrimmage with them," Witcher revealed. "It was all a harrassing tactic."

Coach Tom Fears sat on a stool in the corner of the Sun clubhouse alternately grinning and shaking his head.

"We moved the ball when we had to, but it was exasperating," Fears said. "Valbuena did a good job. The defense did a hell of a job in the first half. But in the second half we were missing tackles."

The first half wavered between being bad and bizarre.

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

Consider this.

Detroit scored on a drive that started on the Sun 21 and took eight plays before Eric Guthrie finally kicked a 32-yard field goal.

Or this.

On a 53-yard touchdown drive, Tony Adams threw five straight incomplete passes. But the Wheels were penalized twice for pass interference. The penalties gave the Sun 45 of the 53 yards.

The Sun had a grand total of 66 net yards in the first half although leading 15-3. Detroit's net yardage was 87. But that was great compared to the first quarter. Stats showed the Sun with MINUS one yard and two first downs. The Wheels had two yards and one first down.

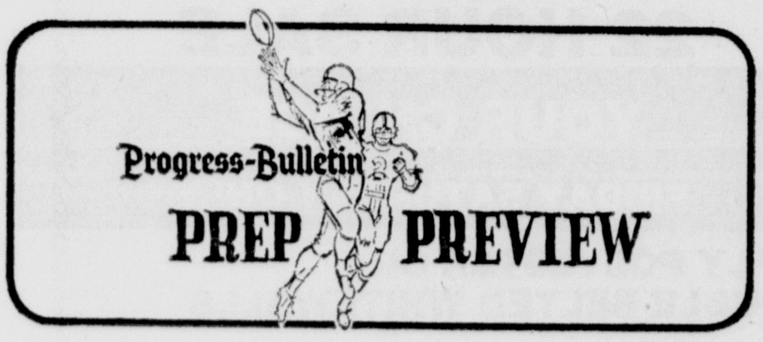
"You can't harp at guys to get them up every game," muttered Fears. "They have to get up for some games themselves. They were just flat tonight."

The Sun coach said he would have gone to Valbuena in the third quarter, but Adams begged to stay in. "I try to get him (Adams) to use more play-action passes," Fears frowned. "You can't keep trying to run if you aren't making any yardage."

"We're a passing team," he continued. "I didn't want it that way. But that's the way it is. We're a passing team. I may have to call all the plays."

Each team scored a touchdown in the third quarter. In the fourth, the Wheels had TD drives of 52 and 40 yeards to go ahead, 24-22.

It took Valbuena just 47 seconds to pull it out.



Pomona vs. St. Anthony at Clark Field

The Red Devils of Pomona, coming off a San Antonio League championship season, will be going against a team with somewhat of a losing tradition.

Pomona, with its 5-5 record from last season, faces St. Anthony and its third new coach in three years, Dick Ambrosi. The Saints haven't had a winning season since 1967.

Coach Mike Clifton's Devils are potentially explosive offensively, with John Souza at quarterback, fleet Raymond Butler at halfback and big Hank Zibell (6-2, 200) at fullback.

Defensively, the Devils look really tough with captains Freddie Turner (6-0, 200) and Calvin Short (6-0, 220) returning to anchor the front lines.

St. Anthony's offensive strength lies in quarterback Perry Carney, tailback Sporty Pacheco (5-9, 160) and tight end Jeff Johnson (6-2, 220).

To reach the Clark Ave. stadium, take the 605 Freeway to Delamo Blvd. and travel West to Clark Ave. in Lakewood.

Chaffey vs. Anaheim at La Palma Park

For the inexperienced 1974 version of the Chaffey High Tigers, tonight's game with the Anaheim Colonists figures to be a toughie.

Anaheim will have the home field advantage, as the game is slated for an 8 p.m. kickoff at La Palma Park in Anaheim. The Colonists will also have the added incentive of revenge, as Chaffey edged them last year 15-14.

The Tigers' only 1973 returning starter, Mike Cumpston, is out of the contest due to injuries. In contrast, Anaheim has seven of their 11 defensive starters back.

Quarterback Larry Garcia will lead the Tiger charge, with speedy backs Jeff Daines and John Taylor rounding out the Chaffey backfield.

Ferrin resigns

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Arnie Ferrin, general manager of the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association for two years, has quit to return to his alma mater, the University of Utah.

Ferrin said uncertainty about the future of pro basketball in Utah and inability to gain part ownership of the team were his reasons for leaving the Stars.

Dodgers lose, get help

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers have been getting plenty of help from the lowly San Diego Padres the past two nights.

If it wasn't for the Padres, the Dodgers' lead in the National League West pennant race would be very shaky.

But L.A. won't be saying thank you tonight when San Diego arrives at Dodger Stadium to open a four-game weekend series.

At this point, the Padres are the key to the Dodgers' pennant hopes.

Los Angeles has maintained its 2½-game lead over Cincinnati despite suffering back-to-back losses to the Houston Astros because San Diego was taking care of Cincy at the same time.

As long as both the Dodgers and Reds lose, L.A. gains because of time. The magic number for clinching the West is down to 11 with only 13 games left on the schedule.

L.A.'s big schedule advantage is the fact seven of the final 13 games are against the Padres, a club which is 0-11 against the Dodgers this season.

But the Padres are anxious to hurt their Southern California neighbors in the pennant stretch the way they did in 1969 and last year.

"We're playing so good now," said Padres' manager John McNamara after Wednesday night's 6-5 win over Cincinnati, "that we're going to carry this up to Los Angeles. We owe the Dodgers a lot more than we owe the Reds."

San Diego's win was greeted loudly with an ovation by the 26,165 fans at Dodger Stadium on hand at the Dodgers' 3-2 loss to the Astros in 10 innings.

"The Padres gave us some help," Dodger skipper Walt Alston said. "Now we're going to have to help ourselves."

Wednesday's game was one the Dodgers should have won. Only the loss by the Reds softened the impact.

Pinch-hitter Ken McMullen came off the bench to belt a dramatic two-run home run in the ninth inning to tie the score but the winning run was gunned down at the plate when the Dodgers foolishly gambled with no outs.

Houston took advantage of the situation by winning in the 10th when Greg Gross singled and Bob Watson brought him in with a double off of loser Charlie Hough.

Astros' righthander Larry Dierker was workin gon a four-hit shutout entering the bottom of the ninth protecting a 2-0 lead. But Dierker came out when Steve Garvey opened the inning with a solid single.

McMullen followed with his home run — third of the season — into the leftfield pavilion off of lefthander Mike Cosgrove.

Ron Cey greeted righthander Ken Forsch with a double. Joe Ferguson followed with a single to right but pinch-runner Rick Auerbach was an easy out at home when Gross made a clutch throw to catcher Milt May in plenty of time.

Instead of having a runner (Auerbach) at third with no outs, Ferguson was at second with one out. Forsch got out of the jam then retired pinch-hitter Charlie Manuel with two runners on base in the 10th to pick up the victory.

"You have to give the outfielder (Gross) credit," Alston said about the play. "When the ball bounced over Tommy Helms' head, it looked like a sure scoring play. You hate to get a man thrown out with nobody out but on the other hand, it looked like a scoring play."

Houston then jumped all over Mike Marshall, the relief ace making his 97th appearance.

Gross opened the eighth with a double down the leftfield foul line. Cesar Cedeno followed with a bloop single to right which Willie Crawford misplayed for two errors to enable both runners to score. Gross came home when the ball got past Crawford and Cedeno circled the bases when Crawford's throw to third baseman Ron Cey bounced away from Cey.

But the runs became earned anyway when Lee May followed with a long double to center just out of Jimmy Wynn's reach.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (16-9) will face Dave Freisleben (9-12) tonight. The other probables in the series are: Friday (7:30) Andy Messersmith (18-6) vs. Joe McIntosh (0-3); Saturday (1:15) Doug Rau (13-9) vs. Dan Spillner (7-11); Sunday (1:15) Al Downing (5-6) vs. Bill Grief (9-17).

Africans not sure about Ali's talk

N'SELE, Zaire (UPI) — Was Muhammad Ali joking when he made an impassioned plea Wednesday for all the Zaires to "to be on guard everywhere. Watch the airport. Watch out for boats that come in the dark. Keep an eye on the border. Watch those bus terminals and elephant convoys. George Foreman must stay here."

Was Foreman's handler Dick Sadler then serious when he said on Tuesday that there was no thought of leaving Zaire?

Muhammad Ali's first mass news conference in Zaire had a socko opening but the old act petered out on the natives. It seems Ali lost a lot in translation.

Coming on after George Foreman's meeting with the world's press, tourists and the natives, Ali pulled a switch. Instead of starting a formal conference he donned work clothing and went into his shadow boxing stance.

He then charmed all those who had never seen him, and by the time he had finished he was leading the Zarois, who love to chant, in a rollicking rendition of "Ali boom aye-ia," which is said to mean "Ali kill him."

The master showman taunted the absence of Foreman, shouting "George in trouble ... something had to happen ... I wonder if that cut was deliberate ... don't let George get out of this country, please don't let him go."

After punching the bag, skipping rope, exercising, all the while yelling his customary slogans, he eventually sat down to meet the press and impress the people.

The intrepreter was flored by Americanisms and the wittiest lines so familiar to the press fell flat when translated.

"You don't talk like us colored folk," he called to the bewildered interpreter. "We colored folk in America created the new language you don't understand."

And it was true. At one point he went into his hilarious plea for all of Zaire to keep Foreman from escaping.

The natives had lost him. Bus terminals? Where would the bus be going to? Elephants? Not in N'Sele. Not in Kinshasa, except in the zoo, maybe. Strange American black man they seemed to feel. Likeable. Funny sometimes, too.

Foreman, meanwhile, was abrupt in explaining when he would be able to fight.

"George Foreman decides when his eye is healed. George Foreman is the doctor. George Foreman will decide when he's well," he said.

The bout, which had been scheduled for Sept. 25, Zaire time, fell apart on Monday when Bill McMurray's elbow nicked the eye, opening a gash that spilled blood down his face.

"I was just sparring along," Foreman said. "And the next thing I felt was the blood and saw it. I felt his elbow graze my neck."

The title-match now has been set for Oct. 30, and both fighters insist that they will remain here until then.

"I was very discouraged when it happened," Foreman said. "A lot of things run through your mind, especially $5 million. But now I have to be content with the healing, keeping in condition and maintaining the right frame of mind."

"I share a lot in common with the people ... who have made us feel like kings. Maybe the cut was a blessing in disguise and this offers me the chance to spend more time here."

It was suggested that now Ali would certainly go for his eye when their match comes off. Foreman grinned. "Ali might be able to get off the floor, that's all," he said.

Three jockeys hurt in Fair racing mishap

The ninth race at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona was declared "no contest" Wednesday after a four-horse spill on the first turn eliminated half of the eight starters.

Two of the jockeys who were aboard the horses involved in the mishap remained at Pomona Valley Community Hospital today.

The most seriously injured, Rudy Turcotte, suffered a fractured collar bone. Rudy Campas was reportedly under observation at the hospital. One other jockey, Frank Inda, was released Wednesday after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Campas' mount, Mini McCoy, caused the mishap when she apprently broke her left foreleg on the first turn. It started a chain reaction that involved June Too (ridden by Turcotte), Susan's Promise (ridden by Inda) and Arlene's Love, the 4-5 favorite, ridden by Bill Mahorney. Mahorney walked away from the spill unhurt. Mini McCoy was later destroyed.

With the declaration of "no contest" by track stewards, all wagers on the race were refunded. A total of $102,336 was bet on the race. The stewards' decision was based on California Horse Racing Board rule No. 1544.

Commenting on the decision, steward Bill Mills said that the stewards felt, "that in all fairness to the public the race should be declared no contest and all wagers refunded."

Street Angel, an 11-1 longshot in the betting, avoided the fallen horses and hit the finish line the apparent winner before the stewards made their decision.

MSAC's Mike Hill makes transition from runner to receiver

Running star Hill turns receiver at MSAC

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

After a 14-14 tie with Citrus last Saturday night, coach Mal Eaton feels his Mt. San Antonio College football team has the potential to be a good one.

"We don't have a personality or a character yet," said Eaton who is in his fourth season at the valley's largest two-year college. "But potentially we can become a good team."

There are at least two good reasons why Eaton can feel this way after only one game and a tough opponent coming up this Saturday in perennially powerful Pasadena City College.

Eaton and his staff brought some of the best high school talent into the fold in an off-season recruiting program.

The preps who joined the Mounties included CIF 4-A champion Los Altos High's top runners last season—Robert "Binky" Benton and Mike Hill.

A couple of 1000-yard performers, both were named All-CIF. Eaton says of Benton, who gained 101 yards on 27 carries against Citrus, "I've never seen so much intensity in one small package."

Grabbing most of the attention, however, was Hill who made a successful conversion from tailback (the position he played at Los Altos) to wide receiver, the position most college recruiters said he would have to become accustomed to if he wanted to play major college football.

In his college debut, Hill caught five of quarterback Kurt Porter's passes for 55 yards and two touchdowns.

This was nothing new for Hill who caught 42 passes for 600 yards in his senior year at Los Altos. He also ran for an additional 1,032 yards with a 5.7 average per carry.

At 6-feet, 183, Hill has 9.9-second speed in the 100-yard dash. "He'll be our deep threat," said receivers coach Ron Copeland with a broad smile.

Ironically, Hill almost didn't show up for practice at MSAC when drills began late in August. He had spent two weeks at Brigham Young University in Utah when he decided to come back home.

"I didn't like the atmosphere there," Hill explained. "I'm not a Mormon and it (BYU) is a Mormon school."

Besides BYU, Hill had a choice of large schools which were interested in his talents, including Washington State, Oregon, Washington Stanford, Cal Berkeley and Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo.

"Most of them gave me the impression I would have played varsity ball as a freshman," Hill said.

At Los Altos, Hill and Benton played on teams which lost only one game in two years and captured the 3-A and 4-A CIF titles in successive seasons.

That has to agree with Eaton. He believes winning is instilled in players by repetition. It becomes part of the player's personality and character.

MOUNTIE NOTES: Saturday's game with Pasadena is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Walnut. . . under Eaton the Mounties haven't faced Pasadena until this year. . .according to Eaton, "they're really big."

Pasadena opened with a 21-13 victory over San Bernardino. Sophomore quarterback Jim Lejay led the attack with 105 yards rushing, including a 71-yard TD gallop. . .running back Lavell Sanders added 89 yards rushing on 11 carries.

La Verne ready for season opener

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

La Verne College becomes the first of the local SCIAC teams to open its 1974 football season.

The Leopards travel to Moraga, Saturday to play the St. Mary's Gaels. But coach Roland Ortmayer still must decide on who will be at quarterback.

"Right now Rickie Tedford is on top," said Ortmayer. "But we have quite a battle going on between four players."

Tedford is a 6-2, 185-pound transfer student from Southwestern JC. The others are Randy Brown, a 6-1, 175-pound transfer from Cal Poly, Cory Meheu, a 6-4, 203-pound junior who played as a freshman two years ago but did not come out last year; and Dave Maloof, a 5-9, 165-pound freshman from San Dimas.

"Maloof could replace the rest at any time," said Ortmayer. "He is just so capable all around. I like him a lot."

Maloof is the younger brother of Jack Maloof. Jack is playing professional baseball and hit .305 with Orlando, Fla.

The veteran La Verne coach has decided on the rest of his starting backfield Saturday. . . .if he doesn't change his mind.

Curtis Frick, two-time All-SCIAC fullback will probably be at fullback. But Ortmayer has come up with another player, who WAS a fullback and who Ort said he is starting. The newcomer, who makes Ort's eyes sparkle when his size is mentioned, is Ben Morrow, a 5-11, 220-pound freshman from Verbum Dei high school.

Another newcomer slated to start is tailback Roy VanderKellen. VanderKellen is a 5-10, 185-pound transfer from Chaffey JC.

Ted Pedvin, a 5-10, 155 freshman from Alta Loma high is pencilled in at wide receiver.

The receivers have troubled Ortmayer the most. "They haven't looked as strong as I had hoped," remarked Ortmayer.

Joe Edmonds and Ralph Larson gave the Leos very capable pass catching last year, but both graduated.

Returning letterman Roger Hanawalt, 6-0, 189 pounds, will be at center. Sophomore Dave Courey, a 5-10, 225-pound Ganesha graduate will be at one tackle and Gary Reynolds, 6-1, 208 pounds from Los Angeles, will hold down the other.

Veteran Brad Bauhman, 5-10, 185 pounds will be one of the guards. Brad Chapman, a 5-11, 180-pound junior from Covina will probably be the other.

Jeff Button, the 5-9, 200-pound all-conference, all-district middle guard, anchors the defense.

Azusa Pacific (1-0) travels to Whittier for a 7:30 p.m. game Saturday. "Our first three games are all against teams who will be playing their first game," said coach Jerry Sconce. "We know nothing about Whittier except what they've done in the past. I can only guess as to what they will do and how they'll do it."

Vermeil says Bruins show improvement

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA football coach Dick Vermeil said Wednesday the Bruins "have improved 25 per cent" since their tie with Tennessee, although they haven't played a game in nearly two weeks.

"Our team has progressed real well in practices," the new Bruin coach said. "I feel we have improved 25 per cent since our first game."

Vermeil announced several changes in the starting lineup prior to Saturday's road game against Iowa.

On the defensive line, Tim Tenningkeit will take over at right tackle in place of Bob Crawford, who has a muscle pull, and Pat Sweetland may start at left tackle in place of Cliff Frazier.

Offensively, Carl Zaby will play at right half for Wendell Tyler and the injured Wally Henry will be replaced at flanker by Steve Monahan.

In NCAA statistics released this week, Bruin quarterback John Sciarra was the major college leader in total offense with 390 yards.

Troy star Taylor dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Rev. Brice Taylor, the University of Southern California's first All America football player and one of the nation's first black players to win such an honor, died Wednesday. He was 72.

Friends said he succumbed to the effects of a stroke.

Taylor was picked as a guard on the 1925 All America teams of the old International News Service (later merged with United Press) and Collier's magazine.

He got a bachelor's degree in history from USC in 1927 and a master's a year later. Then he went to a Texas seminary and obtained a doctor of divinity degree.

He taught in Los Angeles public schools and also was a minister. At the time of his death he was associate pastor of the First African Methodist Episcopal Church here.

Funeral services will be at the church Monday with interment at Lincoln Memorial Park in nearby Compton.

Poly's Clegg knows QBs

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

Cal Poly's Al Clegg should be a good judge of quarterbacks.

The offensive guard has blocked for some of the best during his high school and junior college career before arriving at Poly to help protect the Broncos' Jim Zorn, another highly-touted QB.

Clegg has turned into one of the prize recruits by new coach Andy Vinci and Vinci didn't have to leave the neighborhood to find the outstanding blocker.

After starting on back-to-back CIF championship teams at La Puente's Bishop Amat High, Clegg continued his football education for Mal Eaton for two seasons at Mt. San Antonio College.

Clegg moved down Temple Avenue to Cal Poly to play an important part in leading the Broncos to a 2-0 record entering Saturday afternoon's road contest at San Francisco State.

"Al has done a heck of a job for us," Vinci said. "He's a very intense player and graded the highest (92 per cent) of any of our players on our efficiency scale in the Southern Utah win. That's one of the highest ratings any of my players has ever earned."

At Bishop Amat, Clegg had the experience of playing for championship teams led by two great quarterbacks. As a junior, Clegg blocked for Pat Haden, the present USC star, while his senior campign was spent protecting John Sciarra of UCLA fame.

At MSAC, he had the pleasure of being the Mounties' Most Valuable linemen in helping quarterback Steve Myer achieve All-American honors. Myer is now throwing touchdowns at New Mexico.

"I've been fortunate in playing with a lot of good quarterbacks," Clegg said. "It has also helped me in that they were different. Haden and Myer were basically drop back passers while Sciarra and Zorn like to sprint out. It has given me good experience to play for both type of quarterbacks and the offensive line is basically a spot where experience helps."

Zorn received the publicity and attention for piling up 505 total yards in last week's 37-27 win over Southern Utah. For his accomplishment, he was an easy selection as the Southern California College Division Player of the Week.

"People don't realize how important the offensive line is in gaining that many yards," Clegg explained. "We're used to not getting the publicity but Zorn's award picks up our morale quite a bit."

It would seem natural for a Bishop Amat star to go to a major college but that wasn't in Clegg's plans.

"I'm really not that big (6-1, 225) for the major colleges," he said. "I wanted to go to MSAC and get more experience. I learned a lot there under Coach Eaton."

Vinci, who is a super salesman, almost had Clegg ready to transfer to the University of San Diego but Vinci suddenly switched schools in taking the Poly job and Clegg was happy.

"I was very impressed with Coach Vinci," Clegg said. "It really worked out well for me when he went to Poly because I wanted to stay near my home. I am majoring in business administration and I felt my business contacts would be better if I stayed near home."

Clegg says he is happy about his decision.

"Academically, Cal Poly is a very fine school," Clegg said.. "They have a good program here."

He is also excited about the football prospects under Vinci.

"Potentially, we could have an excellent team," the lineman explained. We really haven't played up to our potential yet. If we do, we could win it all."

Winning is the name of the game for Clegg, who learned how at Amat.

"Amat gave me the right attitude," he said. "I hate to lose."

But he also likes to have fun while playing football and enjoys the spirit which Vinci instills in the team.

"You gotta enjoy football to play well so you must have fun," Clegg added in discussing Vinci's parties after wins. "It helps the morale of the team."

BRONC BUSTERS — Defensive tackle Dale Briggs, a sophomore from Montclair High, will be out a couple of weeks with a knee injury. . .

Vinci says punter Wayne Gross, who is now averaging 40.8 yards a kick, will be adding kickoffs to his duties. . .

Nose guard Tony Giannone won the highest efficiency rating on the defensive unit. .

Saturday's game will begin at 1 p.m. at San Francisco State's Cox Stadium. The two teams haven't met since 1967 with the Gators holding an 8-1 edge in the series. . .

S.F. State is the first of three Far Western Conference teams on Poly's schedule. The Broncs return home next week to host Sacramento State and return to the Bay Area to close the schedule on Nov. 16 at Cal State Hayward.

Angels have way of beating Jenkins

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Ferguson Jenkins may be death on the Oakland A's but when the California Angels show up, his mastery quite often takes the night off.

That was the case once again Wednesday night.

The Angels, a nuisance to the Rangers all year, battled Jenkins around for 10 hits in the opening game of a doubleheader, including back-to-back home runs in the first inning by Bruce Bochte and Joe Lahoud, to beat the Rangers 4-1.

Texas, however, threw Steve Hargan at the Angels in the nightcap and he tossed a three-hitter to win 2-0.

"It's a thrill to pitch well and to beat Fergie," Angel left hander Andy Hassler said after the opening game, in which he went six innings and allowed just four hits. "But it got pretty hot out there for me tonight. It was as hot as I've ever been on the mound except for one time in Kansas City when I almost passed out."

The temperature was not very warm in Arlington Stadium Wednesday night—somewhere in the 70s—but it was very muggy and part of the heat Hassler felt might have come from a line drive hit by Len Randle in the sixth that struck him in the chest.

"It hit me right over the heart," Hassler said. "It almost knocked me over."

Jenkins, however, was not knocking over the Angels. It was the third time this year he had been defeated by California and dropped his record to 23-12.

"I just made some bad pitches," Jenkins said. "And I didn't have a very good curve tonight, either."

And why does Jenkins dominate Oakland (he is 5-0 against the A's this year) and fall so often to the Angels

"If I knew why I would do something about it," Jenkins said.

Jenkins had retired the first two men in the first inning of the opening game when Bochte homered. Lahoud hit his homer on the next pitch.

In the nightcap, Hargan, 12-8, retired the first 11 men he faced before giving up two straight singles. He then retired 11 more in a row before allowing the only other hit California produced in the nightcap.

The split left Texas five games behind division leading Oakland with 12 games to play.

Rams activate Curry on roster

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams Wednesday activated Bill Curry, a 10-year veteran and president of the National Football League Players' Association, as the team's backup center.

Curry, who was recently released by Houston, became the Rams' 47th active player. He replaced Greg Horton, rookie guard from Colorado, who was placed on the injured reserve list with a broken hand and a rib injury.

Coach Chuck Knox said that Curry, a 235-pound, 31-year-old Georgia Tech product, would be backup center to Ken Iman, enabling Rich Saul to concentrate on the guard position.

The Rams, 17-10 winners in their season opener against Denver, host New Orleans at the Coliseum Sunday.

Jack (who else?) favored in Ohio

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI) — The advance arithmetic for the Ohio Kings Island Open, which gets underway today, all adds up to Jack Nicklaus.

And why not?

This $150,000 stop along the PGA tour is being played at—yes—"The Jack Nicklaus Golf Center."

The course record of 62 is held by—yes—Jack Nicklaus. laus.

The winner of last year's tourney here was—oh, yes—Jack Nicklaus.

The only entrant from the top 12 on the money-winning list this year is—ho-hum—Mr. Nicklaus.

So with a big "home court" advantage and such Nicklaus nemises as Johnny Miller, Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf not here, he has to be tabbed as the man to beat in the race for the $30,000 first prize—up $5,000 from last year.

Nicklaus breezed to a 13-under par 271 in last year's tourney debut. His course record 62 on the third day gave him such a gigantic lead that his final day 72 was still good enough for a six stroke win over second-place Trevino.

Maybe slightly embarrassed about posting such an easy win on a course that bears his name, Nicklaus donated all his $25,000 earnings to charity.

The 72-hole tourney winds up Sunday on the 6,915-yard, par 71 layout, located across an interstate highway from Kings Island Amusement Park, a Disneyland-type facility.

Although Nicklaus designed the course primarily for public play, he flew here several weeks ago to "toughen it up" for the professionals.

Right up until the entry deadline, Nicklaus and tournament officials had been hopeful of landing a much better cast. Had Miller and Trevino entered, as officials had publicly anticipated, the tourney could have boasted the three top money winners this year.

Instead, Nicklaus—No. 2 on the money list with $231,507—is joined by only three other players in the top 22—Bobby Nichols, Rod Curl and Leonard Thompson.

Miller, who defeated Nicklaus in sudden death last weekend at the World Open, is the top winner with a whopping $316,383.

Orioles trim Yanks' lead

By United Press International

Ask any of the Baltimore Orioles about pressure and you get several different answers.

But regardless of differences in opinion, pressure was so thick you could peel it Wednesday night as Mike Cuellar won his 20th game and Bobby Grich and Rich Coggins banged out two-run doubles in the seven-run sixth inning to lead the Orioles to an important 10-4 win over New York. It trimmed the Yankees' lead to a skimpy half-game in the American League Eastern Division.

Oriole Manager Earl Weaver was aware of the pressure but feels that the intense pressure of the finishing weeks lies with the first place team.

"I've always felt when I've been in first place that the pressure is on me. If you lost it everyone in the country will call you a loser."

Third baseman Brooks Robinson wasn't too sure about that, saying the pressure is on the team challenging the leader.

"I'd love to be ahead (in the race)," he said. "You don't have that much pressure when you're ahead. The pressure is here, right now."

Robinson agrees with Weaver on one topic. "I think we're going to win," said the perennial all-star. "But we're lucky to be in it at all. The Red Sox let us come back."

New York Manager Bill Virdon cautioned against calling the two losses to Baltimore as a sign that the Yankees were choking.

"I recall a week ago Baltimore lost two in a row (to the Yankees) and they seem to have bounced back pretty good. Don't worry, we'll be back. There's no more pressure on us than on them. They've got to win, we've got to win."

The harsh atmosphere of the crucial series appears to be rubbing superstar Bobby Murcer, who's never been involved in a stretch run, the wrong way. The Yankee took the collar, going 0-5, and was a bit peeved after the game, telling the press icily "no more interviews."

The game was tied 2-2 until the Birds exploded for seven runs in the sixth. The two-run doubles by Coggins and Grich were the key blows.

Cuellar became the eighth American League hurler this year to gain the celebrated 20-game winner status — while there are none in the National League yet. Cuellar has won 20 games or more four times in his career and he has won seven of eight decisions since Aug. 15.

The three-game series ends tonight with the Orioles scheduled again at New York.

In other AL games, Chicago nipped Minnesota 3-1, Cleveland beat Milwaukee 6-3, Oakland edged Kansas City 5-4, Boston topped Detroit 8-5 and California won 4-1 before bowing 2-0 to Texas.

In the National League, Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 4-1, Houston shaded Los Angeles 3-2 in 10 innings, San Diego turned back Cincinnati 6-5, Atlanta beat San Francisco 4-2, Chicago topped Philadelphia 5-2 and Montreal swept New York 3-2 and 4-0.

Bosox 8, Tigers 5

Don't count the Red Sox out of the race yet because Boston's bats, which have been in a heavy slumber of late, are finally awake. Fred Lynn, who spent most of the season playing for Pawtucket in the International League, led the resurgence with four hits, including a two-run fourth inning double. Ex-Tiger Dick McAuliffe punched a two-run homer and Rick Burleson, who had three hits, scored a run and knocked in one to help the Boston revival. Detroit's Al Kaline had three hits, including a two-run homer in the ninth, to whittle the magic number of hits to four that he needs to reach the 3,000-hit plateau attained by only 11 other major leaguers.

A's 5, Royals 4

The A's have been in the doldrums lately but things could improve if Reggie Jackson continues to wield a hot bat. Jackson stroked a two-run single and scored on a wild pitch in a four-run fifth inning to pace the A's' victory.

White Sox 3, Twins 1

Jim Kaat reeled off his fourth straight win over the Twins since joining the Sox. The southpaw scattered seven singles in picking up his 18th win against 13 losses.

Indians 6, Brewers 3

Frank Robinson's two-run homer capped a four-run sixth inning rally that lifted the Indians over the Brewers.

Padres 6, Reds 5

Enzo Hernandez drove in four runs, two of them with a seventh inning double, to lead the Padres over the Reds. An error by second baseman Junior Kennedy set the stage for Hernandez' double and the Padres' shortstop scored what proved to be the winning run later in the inning on a sacrifice fly by Johnny Grubb. Nate Colbert homered for the Padres while Roger Freed had a pinch-hit three-run homer for the Reds.

Pirates 4, Cardinals 1

Al Oliver cracked a pair of doubles and drove in two runs to spark the Pirates over the Cardinals. The triumph enabled Pittsburgh to move within 1½ games of St. Louis in the NL East. Jim Rooker allowed only six hits in going the distance for the win. Lou Brock had his 110th steal for St. Louis.

Braves 4, Giants 2

Hank Aaron, playing his final game in San Francisco, bid farewell to the Bay City with his 732nd career homer and a run-scoring single to lead the Braves over the Giants. Aaron's homer was his 19th. Dave Kingman homered for the Giants.

Cubs 5, Phillies 2

Ron Dunn drove home two runs with a single and a double to lead the Cubs over the Phils. Steve Stone, who took over for injured Rick Reuschel in the fourth inning, went 5 2-3 innings to get the win while Jim Lonborg suffered the loss.

Expos 3-4, Mets 2-0

Steve Rogers and Dale Murray combined on a three-hitter in the opener in pitching the Expos past the Mets. Tim Foli's squeeze bunt scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh inning. Foli also drove in two runs in the nightcap while Dennis Blair and Murray allowed the Mets only four hits.

Chaffey club wins swim league title

The Chaffey Aquatics championship team added another title to its summer laurels. The club captured first place with 1,796 points to take the California Novice League 8-team Championships last weekend at El Monte.

Nine new records were set by the Chaffey Swim Club as Todd Major and Karon Kostoff swam to three new pool marks each. Lynn Ferguson set two standards and the 9-10 year old mixed medley relay set a record with a time of 2:27.6.

Majors, swimming in the 9-10 class, took the 50 yard fly in 33.1, the 100 yard backstroke in 1:18.0, and the 100 yard indo in 1:15.6. Kostoff (11-12) took the 50 fly in 31.8, the 100 yards backstroke in 1:11.5, and the 200 yard free in 2:11.2. Ferguson won the 50 yard breaststroke in 34.3 and the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:16.0.

High point individual trophies were awarded to Laurie Grabowski (6-and-under) and Karon Kostoff, Todd Majors and Greg Lugosi.

Chaffey Aquatics will close the season with their annual awards banquet Oct. 1 at the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Chuck Estrada hired by Angels

ANAHEIM — Chuck Estrada, former pitching coach of the Texas Rangers and most recently minor league pitching instructor for the Atlanta Braves, has been hired as the California Angels' minor league pitching instructor, it was announced by minor league director Tom Sommers.

Estrada, 36, will begin his duties in the Arizona Instructional League Saturday. As a rookie with the Baltimore Orioles in 1960, Estrada was an 18-game winner and appeared in the All-Star game. He was a teammate of Angels manager Dick Williams with the Orioles in 1961 and 1962.

Estrada replaces Billy Muffett, recently appointed Angels pitching coach.

Pomona Bruins open season with victory

Coach Archie Brown's Pomona Bruins opened defense of their Pop Warner Western Division crown with a 15-0 win over the San Dimas-La Verne Gladiators.

Larry Wilmore carried 11 times for the Bruins for 163 yards and two touchdowns, one a 30-yard reception and the other a 60-yard run. Woody Newton, Tony Gooden, Manuel Fender and Greg Linton led the defense.

The Bruins play the Chino Broncos Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at Chino High.

The Diamond Bar Banditos began their season on a bright note as Harold Lee scored three first half TD's to pace his team to a 33-0 romp over Chino.

Richard Oseguera and Brent Livingston each scored a touchdown and Livingston added three extra points. Al Bertram, Robbie Eltz, Rene Perez and Kevin Struessel headed a defense that did not allow Chino a first down, while the DB offense netted 282 yards.

The Diamond Bar Chiefs were not as fortunate as they were dealt a 20-6 setback by the Fontana Elks. The lone Chief scored came on a David Helman to John Spizer pass play.

Wichita St. put on probation

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — Wichita State's basketball team has been placed on two years probation by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions in accordance with a previous action by the Missouri Valley Conference.

The NCAA penalty carries sanctions prohibiting Wichita State's basketball team from appearing in post-season competition or on any NCAA-controlled television series for two years from Dec. 4, 1973, the date of the MVC action.

Foreign collegians

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Foreign athletes attending U.S. colleges made up 13 per cent of the total entries in the NCAA's track and field championships held here last June. They won six individual events and accounted for more than 25 per cent of the team points scored.

Top seeds breeze in S'west Open

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jimmy Connors and Arthur Ashe had trouble but Roscoe Tanner breezed through his match as all seeded players advanced into today's third round of the $100,000 Pacific Southwest Open Tennis Championship.

The biggest upset of Wednesday's second round play came when Eric Van Dillen, who had stunned No. 2 seed Stan Smith in the first round, fell victim to Bob Kreiss of Los Angeles, 7-6, 7-5.

Connors, the 22-year-old Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, outlasted ailing teen-ager Brian Teacher of San Diego, 6-2, 6-7, 6-2, to win the 15th straight match he has played in.

Teacher, a 19-year-old UCLA junior, gave Connors a much tougher battle than expected and played despite an injured back and the flu.

"I don't want to use this as an excuse," UCLA's No. 1 tennis player said. "He (Connors) is a better player. I did get a little tired near the end."

"I needed the exercise," said Connors about the three-set match that lasted two hours and five minutes. "It's difficult

Owl coach knows too much about opponent

Citrus college football coach John Stryclula has a peculiar problem this week: he knows too much about the team his Owls have to host Saturday night.

"We know a lot about Long Beach," Strycula says," and we don't like what we see. They just throw a lot of offense at you—different kinds of sets—everything."

It will be the first game of the season for Long Beach, which scrimmaged L.A. Harbor last week. Returning from last year's squad are Pete Tereschuk, an All-Metropolitan Conference quarterback, and fullback Randy Woodard. Tereschuk and Woodars get a lot of help up front from Chuck Miller, a 6-3, 290-pound offensive tackle.

The Owls are coming off a 14-14 tie with MSAC last weekend.

Fullback Ed White, a shophomore who gained 700 yards, a freshman in 1973, took aim on bettering that mark with 119 yards on 22 carries and one touchdown. He also caught four passes for 55 yards.

Freshman tailback Roy Prather added 84 yards rushing and quarterback Bill Strycula (the coach's son) completed 8 of 11 passing attempts for 105 yards.

The Owls scored twice in the first quarter in the opener and held off the Mounties until late in the third period. MSAC finally tied the game up with a TD pass in the final 26 seconds.

Strycula had mixed emotions about the game. "We feel bad about being tied, but on the other hand, tying one of Mal's teams (MSAC coach Mal Eaton) is nothing to be ashamed of."

The Long Beach game will be the last non-conference contest for Ctrus which opens Mission Conference play at Riverside City College, Sept. 28.

Pass offense, defense Panther plusses

Chaffey College football coach Willie Richardson is pretty sure about two things concerning his team's season opener Saturday night against Santa Barbara.

Number one, the Panthers should be able to throw the ball pretty well this season with two veteran quarterbacks vying for the starting position and a crops of able receivers. And number two, Chaffey will most likely be strong against the air attack with three veteran defensive backs returing.

Fighting to be No. 1 quarterback are Mark Tundis, a starter last year, and Mario Caridi, who saw quite a bit of action. Tundis completed 88 passes for 876 yards and five touchdowns in 1973.

His main receiver was Gary Seeber who latched onto 37 for nearly 400 yard and two touchbowns.

Joining Seeber will be newcomers Lonnie Carr and Rod Weigand. Carr is a transfer from Missiouri, and Wiegand was a star at Chaffey High last year.

Defening against the pass will be veterans Rick Godinez, Wayne King and Bruce Steffler. Godinez was a second team All-Mission Conference selection last year.

Richardson describes Santa Barbara as a "big, well coached team.. The right side of the line must weigh about 800 pounds," the coach added. "If we can throw pretty well we ought to give them a game."

Roberson to New Orleans

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association have traded 6-foot-9 center Rick Roberson to New Orleans for 6-6 forward Barry Clemens, plus a second-round draft pick and "a substantial amount of money."

Roberson came to the Blazers last year with forward John Johnson in an exchange with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Roberson, a fifth-year pro, has averaged 13.5 points per game.

Clemens is starting his 10th NBA season. He played for New York, Chicago, Seattle and Cleveland before being acquired by New Orleans in an expansion draft last spring.

Portland still has three centers—No. 1 draft pick Bill Walton of UCLA, Larue Martin and Lloyd Neal.

DFG office has Roosevelt Elk hut info

Information sheets and application cards for a special Roosevelt elk hunt, California's first in seven years, are available from license agents and offices of the Department of Fish and Game throughout the state.

Fifty permits—38 for antlerless elk and 12 for bulls—will be issued through public drawing for the hunt which is scheduled for two periods, Nov. 16-24 and Nov. 30-Dec. 8 in Humboldt County.

The hunt area is the area west of Highway 101 between the town of Orick and the Prairie Creek Redwoods State Park. The area has been divided into two zones.

Applicants must file on the application card, and the number of the applicant's 1974-75 hunting license must be shown. Up to two persons may file as a party by submitting their applications in one envelope.

Applicants must be at least 16 years old to qualify. No person may file more than on application, and persons who have received elk permits in the last five years are ineligible. Although there have been no recent Roosevelt elk hunts, there have been Rocky Mountain elk hunts in Shasta and Siskiyou counties.

Applications must be received at DFG headquarters in Sacramento by 5 p.m. Oct. 2 to be eligible for the drawing, which will be held the morning of Oct. 4 at headquarters.

The first 25 persons drawn will receive permits for the first hunt period in the following order: four bull permits for zone A, two bull permits for zone B, 11 antlerless permits for zone A and eight antlerless permits for zone B. The second 25 persons drawn will receive permits for the second period in accordance with the same schedule as for the first 25.

Successful applicants will be notified by mail and will be instructed as to remitting the $50 fee and obtaining the permit.

They will have until Oct. 21 to claim permits, and unclaimed permits will go to alternates who also will be named by public drawing.

The DFG recommended and the California Fish and Game Commission adopted the special elk hunt because of worsening problems of depredation and to ensure the health of the herd by eliminating excess animals. The hunt will be the fourth in the area in 12 years.

Hunt permits still available

Well over a thousand permits still were available at mid week to hunt the second weekend of the 1974-75 waterfowl season on three national wildlife refuges in northeastern California, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

No permits remain for the first weekend on any of the three refuges—Tule Lake, Lower Klamath or Modoc NWR— and no permits are left for the Tule Lake field unit for the second weekend.

However, still available were 511 permits for tthe second weekend on the Tule Lake field unit, 544 on Lower Klamath and 270 on Modoc NWR.

Applications for reservations may be made by telephone at (916) 441-1792 in Sacramento. One caller may reserve up to four permits by providing the name, address and 1974 hunting license number of each person planning to hunt. Each hunter may hold only one permit.

No permits will be required on the refuges for weekday hunting or after the second weekend. The season in the northeast will open Oct. 12.

The switchboard handling reservations will close Sept. 30 or as quickly as all permits have been reserved if this occurs before Sept. 30.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2 32 inches or less remaining).

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

A dragonfly is a graceful, swift-flying insect with a long, slender body and four filmy wings.

Dragonflies are found in almost all parts of the world and are frequently seen on warm summer days patrolling the edges of ponds and streams as they look for food.

Large, compound eyes made up of many tiny eyes cover most of the dragonfly's head. With these big eyes it can see its prey easily

As it flies through the air, the dragonfly holds its legs together to form a basket in which to capture mosquitoes, flies and other insects.

The female dragonfly drops its eggs in the water where they hatch into wingless larvae, called nymphs. The young dragonflies live in the water from one to three years, then become adult dragonflies.

Because of many old superstitions, dragonflies sometimes are called devil's darning needles, snake doctors and mule killers.

A BRITANNICA Atlas, pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
